RECOMMENTATIONS ON FOUNDATION ESTABLISHMENT FOR GOOSE CREEK STREAM DEVELOPMENT- by Merv Rosenbaum

Two questions will be discussed in this paper:

A. Should Goose Creek Stream Development Committee establish a foundation?

B. If so, should it be be separate or part of Communities Foundation of Texas?

A. Should Committee Establish a Foundation?

- Major incentive for establishment is ability to hold land grants of purchases until city can apply and receive matching grants from governmental agencies, which can often provide major benefits.

- Other incentive often quoted is greater willingness of donors to give to separate non-governmental rather than city agency.

- Major disadvantages are need to pay school, county, city taxes on land and provide insurance until land is turned over to city.

- Other disadvantage is amount of paperwork required to establish, and annual reporting to IRS to confirm status.

RECOMMENDATION: BECOME FOUNDATION PROVIDED CLEAR CUT WAY IS IDENTIFIED TO PAY TAXES AND INSURANCE ON POTENTIAL DONATED LAND.

- How large are these costs?
- Would city agree beforehand to furnish the funds?

B. Should Foundation be separate or part of the Communities Foundation of Texas?

- Communities Foundation of Texas originally founded in the Dallas/Ft. Worth area to provide a means by which citizens may donate gifts to meet needs in wide area of non-profit activities.

- Controlled by unpaid board of 8 trustees

- Day to day activities conducted by professional staff of 20

- Has granted $164M from 1953-1989

- Now has a wide range of different types of funds to which contributions are channelled.

- Has many branch funds in other areas
  - Palacios Area Fund
  - Millard's Crossing
  - Metrocrest Area Fund (serves 4 cities in Metroplex)
  - San Angelo Fund
  - Wichita Falls Fund
  - San Angelo Fund
  - Wichita Falls Fund
  - Midland/Odessa Area Fund
  - Texarkana Fund

- Per discussions with Mary Eggermeyer (director)

  Is logical vehicle for Goose Creek Devel.

  Professional staff not required locally

  Eliminates need for paper work for establishment of foundation and annual reporting to IRS

  Can be done rapidly

  Fees are 10% of return on invested capital or $50/quarter if no invested funds

  Would require $5 - 10K assets to begin

  Avoids risk of having to switch from public to private foundation if have large donation one year more than 2/3 of total in that year

RECOMMENDATION: IF WE GO THE FOUNDATION ROUTE, INVITE MARY EGGERMEYER HERE TO EXPLAIN TO ENTIRE GROUP IN MORE DETAIL BEFORE MAKING DECISION.

LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN

John F. Stephens,
Chairman of the Board
Communities Foundation of Texas
Chairman of the Board & CEO
Employers Insurance of Texas

"The growth of the unrestricted funds and field of interest funds will be important to the future of our effectiveness in the community."

During the past year Communities Foundation of Texas set a course to develop the best and most professionally run community foundation anywhere. Growth and size are second to quality, and the board and staff are pledged to abide by that maxim. In this report you will find samples of the grants and projects which will benefit everyone in the community. You will find a most thorough and extensive audit report of Communities Foundation. You will also find the names of many concerned and caring citizens who devote their talent and countless hours to help the Foundation run better and more efficiently, and who have worked to help the Foundation to grow.

The Budget and Finance Committees have recognized the need for operating in a modern business environment and have responded by adding talent and upgrading the business tools. The Investment Committee, recognizing the serious role of prudent and conservative stewards of assets set aside for philanthropic projects, constantly monitors the performance and quality of the Foundation's investments. The Audit Committee scrutinizes the operations and expenditures. Our legal advisors give countless hours of pro bono time and assistance to ensure the Foundation's operations and methods are unmistakably within the bounds of the ever-changing myriad of laws, rules, regulations and ordinances.

Continued economic pressures have put a strain on CFT's resources this past year, but with grants of well over $24 million, the asset base still grew by more than $12 million. Although the largest amount of these grants comes from restricted funds, the general unrestricted fund is still relatively modest. The growth of the unrestricted funds and field of interest funds will be important to the future of our effectiveness in the community. Additionally, this past year saw renewed interest on the part of private donors and private foundations creating both formal and informal relationships with Communities Foundation of Texas to maximize their effectiveness, minimize their costs, and often give them significant tax advantages.

Communities Foundation is a tool for the donors and benefactors alike. Our pledge to those who use it is to remain diligent, strive toward improvement, and carry out the intent of the donors' gifts, while keeping an eye on changing circumstances, needs and available resources.

Communities Foundation of Texas is recognized as the most flexible tool for donors in Texas, and we encourage your inquiry if charitable or philanthropic plans, ideas and projects are of interest to you. We hope that before creating a private foundation or a community-based philanthropic fund you will investigate CFT's experience and consult with us. This spirit of cooperation has in the past, and will in the future, help us build a stronger, more enjoyable, better educated and healthier community. Together our efforts will be more effective than if we work separately. We look forward to a better world, working diligently with you.

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

In this report of the Foundation's activities this past year you will see the results of a fusion of creativity and discipline. These were, and are, the critical ingredients of a rather enormous effort to improve life for millions of people. The Foundation has been the catalyst for well over $160,000,000 in charitable grants since its inception. A volunteer board of our finest citizens guides its operations with a steady hand. The staff is an engine which keeps this dynamic process going. Generous donors provide the fuel and often the fresh ideas necessary to keep the Foundation vibrant. Attorneys and counselors have coupled a knowledge of tax law with a sensitive understanding of their clients' desires to make the world better. All of us in this process are stewards. In one sense we are simply stewards of funds entrusted to our care, but we have collectively realized that we are also in part responsible for the good of the community, the well-being of others, and the care of the earth itself.

Why has the interest in systematic, private philanthropy been renewed of late? Many of the Foundation's clients have found that simply throwing dollars at problems rarely brings results. Carefully administering funds to ensure they are wisely used and properly applied increases the probability that the application of funds is successful. CFT's donors have also come to trust the Foundation to preserve the intent of their charitable gifts, and that assurance has prompted many to leave bequests to CFT in their wills.

How does the Foundation then determine what is prudent stewardship of these funds? It boils down to the question of what today's generation wants Texas to be like for the next generation. How much of ourselves do we want to contribute to make that dream happen?

- Edward M. Fjordbak
President
Communities Foundation of Texas

We need to grasp the vision of a better, safer and more beautiful community. We need to have the discipline necessary to ensure our children are educated. We need to foster research to explore the unknown and find cures for disease and hunger. Some of these issues can be addressed by the government's using tax dollars. Much, however, can only be done efficiently by those who have the vision, are unencumbered by politics and bureaucracy, and are willing to sacrifice their own well-being to help others - many of whom are not yet born.

Such are the people who have created funds at Communities Foundation of Texas. They are generous and care about others and their community. The Foundation is this body of people, rather than a hollow institution. This report is, therefore, dedicated to those of you who have been, or will in the future be a part of the Foundation's family of concerned individuals. Our pledge of diligence and sensitivity is a reflection of you.

"The Foundation has been the catalyst for well over $160,000,000 in charitable grants since its inception."

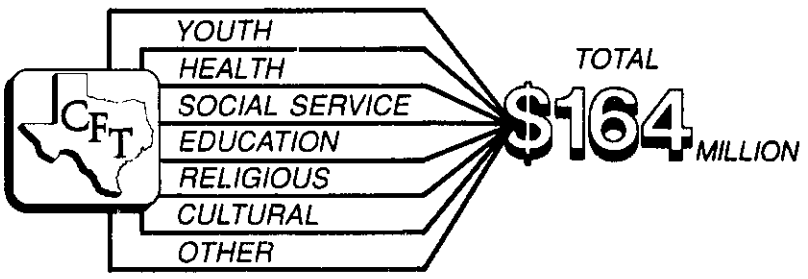
48 1690



Over a 36-year history, the complexion of Communities Foundation of Texas has altered to accommodate the expected as well as unforeseen changes of the community and its citizens. Fundamental social requirements of the 1950s may now be merely nostalgic as the 1990s loom ahead. Communities Foundation strives to maintain a consistent pace with present demands as well as dares to step out and anticipate future trends in giving, along with the needs of recipient agencies and the community in general.

Established in 1953, Communities Foundation of Texas, known then as the Dallas Community Chest Trust Fund, began with modest initial funds from interested citizens, including Pearl C. Anderson and the late Algur Meadows. To date, the Foundation has distributed more than $164 million to nonprofit organizations throughout the state. These grants represent a rich array of interaction in the areas of arts and culture, civic improvement, education, health, social service and youth. Although a number of industries felt a squeeze from the volatile economic climate of the past few years, many nonprofit groups continued to thrive, thanks to the forethought of generous donors. Funds established with Communities Foundation of Texas in more abundant years can be tapped to help keep charities afloat during lean times.

The Foundation's grant-making capabilities stem from a pooled reservoir of funds donated by citizens throughout the state. Contributions are often directed to establish named advise and consult funds, or are channeled to a general fund to be distributed at the discretion of the Foundation's board of trustees. Funds designated to address specific issues or organizations can also be created. Because of the diversity of what the Foundation can accommodate, gifts may be made in the form of cash, stocks, bonds, real estate, mineral or timber interests, life insurance or closely-held stock. A donor may also choose to name the Foundation as beneficiary in his or her will.

In addition to a full-time professional staff, Communities Foundation of Texas is governed by a seven-member board of trustees. These individuals, who serve without remuneration for three-year terms, are appointed based on their business and civic involvements and contributions to the community. Trustees offer advice and guidance related to financial investments, grant distribution and management of the Foundation.

As the economy tightened, Communities Foundation assumed a more aggressive approach for increasing its asset base and subsequent benefits to the community. In conjunction with the North Dallas Chamber of Commerce, Communities Foundation hosted a black-tie gala billed as "Premiere '89" at the Studios at Las Colinas. The event, which was designed to attract business executives and donors, showcased the local film and video industry with highlights of the latest communications technology and special effects. Proceeds from the evening were channeled to the Fund for Children and Youth of Communities Foundation of Texas and the YMCA's shelter for runaway youth, Casa de los Amigos. In another activity which involved the Foundation as benefactor, the Murata Reunion Pro-Am Golf Tournament teed off in March, 1989, at the Stonebriar Country Club. Communities Foundation, along with the Lion's Sight and Tissue Foundation, shared proceeds of almost $85,000. This year's tournament will be played in April at the same location.

Along with providing financial support, Communities Foundation of Texas positions itself as a source for information on local nonprofit agencies and various social issues. By encouraging staff members to become involved with a number of organizations in the community, the Foundation is able to maintain a more accurate reading of the pulse of the community's strengths and weaknesses. The Foundation also serves as a catalyst for community action, gathering groups of very different perspectives to establish a beneficial dialogue for all concerned.

Communities Foundation of Texas is in training for the challenges of the future. By building a strong financial and leadership infrastructure, the Foundation hopes to become equipped to face any hurdle. Just as a sprinter reaches out and grasps the baton and lunges forward toward the finish line with a burst of energy, Communities Foundation of Texas eagerly accepts the challenges that lie ahead in the 1990s and the goal to carry this community and its citizens to a philanthropic victory.

"The family is the foundation" is the theme depicted in this statue gracing the Foundation lobby.

The flexibility of the Foundation allows gifts to be made in a variety of ways. Communities Foundation of Texas works with donors on a personal level to determine which type of fund is best suited to their charitable intentions. The types of funds that the Foundation typically administers are as follows:

Unrestricted Funds

A gift to the unrestricted fund offers the Foundation the ability to respond to urgent needs. Distributions from this fund are made by the trustees three times a year to worthy organizations and projects. Donors are encouraged to give to the unrestricted fund when they wish to donate small gifts or if they are undecided about a recipient.

Advise and Consult Funds

Donors to an advised fund may make suggestions to the Foundation regarding disbursements from the fund; however, final authority over all grants rests with the board of trustees. The fund typically carries the name of the donor, although some donors may wish to remain anonymous or name the fund for a relative or loved one. Recommendations for grants may be made throughout the year. This fund is usually established with a minimum $10,000 donation.

Memorials

A gift to this fund pays tribute to a departed loved one or friend. A memorial fund may be established as a permanent legacy, with the yearly interest flowing to philanthropic projects in general, certain areas of interest to the donor, or to a designated charity. A donor may simply ask that a small gift be made in honor of a friend or loved one on behalf of his or her favorite charity. An acknowledgement of this gift is made to the donor as well as the individual so honored, if appropriate.

Charitable Remainder Trusts/Charitable Lead Trusts

Charitable remainder trusts provide a donor and/or any other beneficiary income for life. When the benefits to the individual terminate, the gift passes to the Foundation. In a lead trust, the donor may donate the income from an income-generating gift to the Foundation over a period of time, with the gift reverting to the donor or another beneficiary. Both techniques may offer certain tax deductions at the time the trust is established, as well as other tax advantages.

Designated Funds

In this case, the donor designates a specific purpose for the gift. The Foundation accepts both large and small gifts to such a fund, acknowledges each donation and monitors the use of the funds. This type of fund may be established on behalf of a charity that needs outside resources to manage its donations. An area of interest to the donor or a geographic area may be designated.

Support Foundations

Under current tax law (sec. 509(a)(3)), a separately incorporated foundation may qualify for treatment as a public charity, provided it is pledged to support a specific public charity or charities, or if a public charity controls it through its board of directors. Where large gifts of unusual assets such as closely-held stock or certain business interests are donated, this may prove advantageous to the donor who wishes to retain a measure of legal control over the operations of the foundation, the foundation's assets, or the disposition of funds.

Field of Interest Funds

These 14 funds are listed in more detail on page 9. Generally, these funds are used by donors who wish to contribute to a particular field of interest, but not any specific organization. The Distribution Committee of Communities Foundation of Texas disburses funds as the needs and funds are available.

48 1693

Gifts to "Field of Interest" funds - Reflecting its diversity as a charitable vehicle and in response to donor needs, Communities Foundation of Texas offers 14 Field of Interest funds. These funds enable donors who wish to support specific areas of philanthropy to do so without creating named funds. Because there is no minimum amount for gifts, donors have the opportunity to participate in a particular area of philanthropy without contributing a specified amount. Income from these funds is used to support the particular area of philanthropy as indicated by the fund title. These funds include:

- The Fund for Mental Health - Supports agencies, research projects and education dedicated to the maintenance and advancement of mental health

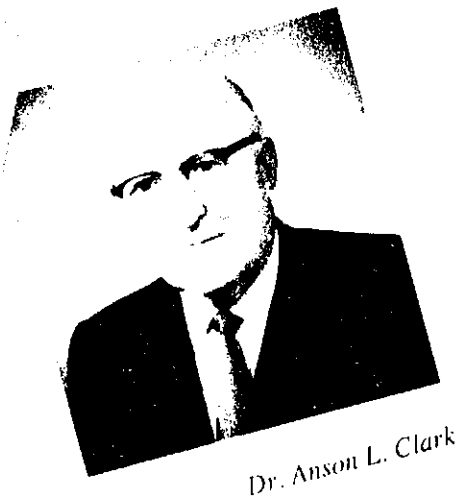
Today's donors are a cross section of people who care to make a difference in our lives and the lives of our children. Their stories are unique and their contributions vary widely, but they all have one thing in common: they give what they have for others.

Few stories are more inspiring to women entrepreneurs than the accomplishments of Mary Crowley and the company she founded, Home Interiors and Gifts. Her career began at a home products party in 1949, and within eight years she started her own company specializing in decorative accessories. A gifted manager and leader, Mary spent the next 30 years shaping the company into a business with sales of more than $400 million. Her son, Donald Carter, now serves as president for the company that employs or provides business opportunities for more than 40,000 sales managers and displayers, consisting mostly of women.

Mary Crowley did not invest all her time in work. The First Baptist Church of Dallas was the recipient of a lifelong outpouring of love and generous gifts. She gave her time, too. For 28 years, Mary taught a Sunday school class every week, despite a hectic travel schedule. A building at the church complex bears her name as a tribute to her many heartfelt contributions.

Fortunately, Mary's name will live on through the Home Interiors and Gifts Fund at Communities Foundation of Texas. The fund has been very active in charitable giving, concentrating on social services that help people in need. Her untimely death in June, 1986, meant a great loss to the citizens of Dallas. Not only was she a distinguished business woman, she was a fine lady who put others before herself.

Education was an important component in the life of Dr. Anson L. Clark. So it was not a surprise that the trustees of the Anson L. Clark Foundation set up a fund at Communities Foundation of Texas to establish scholarships. Throughout his life, Dr. Clark pursued a variety of career interests, each involving years of study.



He earned an engineering degree from Cornell University in 1914. After serving in the Air Corps in World War I, Dr. Clark elected to study medicine at Rush Medical College at the University of Chicago. He served as an associate in the special urology section and as an instructor in urology at the Mayo Clinic. Afterwards, he continued his practice of urology in Oklahoma City. In 1951, Dr. Clark entered the oil business, a career which he pursued until his death in 1967. The firm he established, Cornell Oil Company, named after his alma mater, is still thriving today.

Dr. Clark wisely recognized the benefit of scholarships for sparking talent among bright students. Each year seven students who are considered among the top in their classes are selected to receive a $2,000-a-year award. To date, dozens of students have applied the scholarships to degrees in higher education.

Communities Foundation of Texas is fortunate to have donors who know the future of our nation rests with our children. At least for seven students who receive scholarships each year, the future is off to a good start.

Cotton gins played an important role when "cotton was king" in the South, and it was the refinement of this cotton gin that contributed to the economic development of the area. One man who helped revolutionize the ginning process was John T. Gordin. His invention of the big-saw gin multiplied the capacity of the gins and brought great satisfaction to its inventor. In recognition of his achievements in the cotton gin industry, Gordin was named Cotton's Man of the Year in 1964.

As a result of hard work and initiative, both John and his wife, Ollie Mae, were able to accumulate collectible fine art. Some of their art was donated to Communities Foundation of Texas so that others could enjoy its beauty. Foremost among their donations was a museum-quality collection of antique Oriental ivory statues. Each piece is intricately carved from unusually large ivory tusks. Although similar pieces are now banned due to elephant preservation laws, these ivory pieces were created in an earlier era, thus making them even more rare and valuable. The collection is thought to represent the Ting Dynasty, and each piece is hand signed by the craftsmen who lent their expertise. As an individual who spent time in the machinery business, John admires the precision work that is involved with carving the ivory.

Ollie Mae shares John's enthusiasm for art and the joy that the collection has brought. Together they have shared their treasures with the Foundation, for all to see in a newly-remodeled board room. Ollie Mae and John are pleased to know that their gift will be revered for years to come.

Every now and then the world is blessed with a person who spends his life amassing a fortune, only to turn around and give much of it away. Such was the case of billionaire Charles Sammons.

Sammons started from humble beginnings and as an orphan. He was industrious even as a boy, and early on got into the hay and grain business. He later used his skills in the insurance business. He found that he could attract others to help him. Recruiting good people and delegating responsibilities to them was his self-professed talent. Such was the formula that would serve him well throughout his 90 years of life.

Although Charles Sammons amassed one of America's largest privately-held conglomerates, he never failed to acknowledge the people who helped him build his fortune. Today, Sammons Enterprises and other Sammons holdings include over 60 companies. These interests include cable television systems, insurance, petrochemical, industrial and marine service and supply, bottled spring water, and travel companies.

But "giving back" meant more than giving credit to those who enabled him to build his wealth. To Sammons, charitable giving played a large role in his life.

Through Communities Foundation of Texas, Charles Sammons was able to distribute millions of dollars to support charitable interests. He cared for the average person and sought to help provide basic shelter, food and clothing. Sammons thought he, himself, was an ordinary man and wished he could have donated more of his time to help groups in need.

Perhaps it was this respect for his fellow man that made Charles Sammons not only a successful businessman, but a great humanitarian. But for all his millions, Sammons practiced philanthropy the old-fashioned way - quietly.

With firmly established roots in its principal Dallas-based office, Communities Foundation of Texas has extended its influence to other locations throughout the state by creating branch operations. These satellite facilities of the Foundation enable citizens to set aside financial support for the present and future benefit of their particular community. By giving to this type of fund, donors are assured that their money will be spent in locations that are meaningful to them.

Representatives from the Palacios Area Fund and the Dallas office of Communities Foundation welcomed the historic sailing vessel, the Elissa, during its spring tour of the gulf coast. With her sails hoisted high, this restored high-masted vessel majestically entered the Palacios harbor for a community-wide celebration and viewing, thanks to efforts of the PAF branch office.

Palacios Area Fund

The first such seedling sprouted up as the Palacios Area Fund (PAF) in 1981. Citizens of the town of Palacios, located off the south coast of Texas near Corpus Christi, pooled their financial resources and created the fund to serve on-going needs of the community. Palacios Area Fund serves not only as a funding source for area nonprofit agencies and local projects, but also as a well of information and leadership support for the community. Participation in developing local charity events and activities falls under the umbrella of this branch operation. Thanks in part to efforts by Roberta Ripke, PAF Director, citizens from Palacios opened their hearts and raised more than $93,000 to help pay for the liver transplant of a local nine-year-old boy. The fund-raising effort by the community was as much a success as the transplant operation itself.

Metrocrest Area Fund

Suburban growth surrounding the core of Dallas generated the need for a branch office in the Metroplex area. Serving the cities of Addison, Carrollton, Coppell and Farmers Branch, the Metrocrest Area Fund (MAF) was established in 1988 by Carol Dingman, now Executive Director of MAF. Like other branches of Communities Foundation, the Metrocrest Area Fund is positioned to help facilitate the financial needs of the citizens and nonprofit organizations in the area. Fruits of this effort have been seen in a grant to initiate a local program of intervention for battered women, as well as funding of equipment for the Metrocrest Office on Aging. Similar to its parent organization, the Metrocrest Area Fund is structured with a professional staff, advisory council and distribution committee.

This white wooden chapel, built in 1843, offers a perfect setting for an old-fashioned wedding at Millard's Crossing.

Millard's Crossing

A branch of Communities Foundation of Texas extended into the East Texas Piney Woods in the form of Millard's Crossing, a historic village of 19th century Texas structures. Unlike the combined efforts of donors in other branch operations, Millard's Crossing grew from an endowment fund and a property fund which were established at Communities Foundation of Texas. The donor and founder of the property fund, Mrs. Albert Thomas, requested that the Foundation preserve the historic accuracy of the buildings, which are vividly portrayed in bold colors reminiscent of the Victorian period. The structures are furnished with antiques collected from all over the world. Through a gift from the Brown Foundation, the Millard's Crossing Endowment Fund was established to provide for the operation and upkeep of the facility.

Communities Foundation of Texas continues to strengthen its asset base to facilitate further grant making throughout the state of Texas. A number of donors have expressed an interest in establishing additional branch operations; and, in some cases, initial funds have already been placed with the Foundation.

MESSAGE TO ATTORNEYS

48 1697

Most Americans are very generous when it comes to assisting other citizens with worthy projects. In fact, charitable giving resulted in another record-breaking year in philanthropy, with more than $100 billion dollars donated to charity. Yet, many people do not know if their charitable dollars are used to maximum potential and how best to channel their donations.

As an advisor, you are in a position to recommend tax-wise approaches for carrying out your client's philanthropic interests. We invite you to find out how the Foundation can incorporate tax incentives, community benefits and individual satisfaction.

By suggesting charitable gifts made through a community foundation, donors can take maximum tax deductions for gifts while maintaining a role by advising in the distribution of grants. Both income and estate tax benefits may be realized for gifts made during a donor's lifetime. This may be particularly rewarding to clients who enjoy seeing the results of their gifts among nonprofit recipients.

Although the Foundation encourages donors to make donations during their lifetimes, traditionally community foundations have grown through bequests. By naming Communities Foundation of Texas in a will, donors are assured that their gifts continue to give in perpetuity, as only the income of the gift is generally distributed. Grants are made in the name of the donor who created the fund from which the grant is made.

Finally, in addition to the many gift options available to donors, the Foundation provides flexibility and adaptability over time. In each case, the Foundation works closely with the donor to identify his or her interests and philanthropic objectives. So, whether a gift is made during a donor's lifetime or through a bequest, carrying out the donor's interest is the ultimate pledge of the Foundation.

Communities Foundation of Texas welcomes your inquiries. Find out how a charitable gift can reduce your client's current tax liabilities while providing the immeasurable joy of helping others, both now and for years to come.

A bequest to Communities Foundation of Texas may be made by simply stating in one's will that he or she wishes to leave a certain cash amount or percentage of the estate's assets with or without distribution instructions. The following forms are recommended:

Bequest form for a specific purpose

I give and bequeath the sum of $____ to Communities Foundation of Texas, Inc., or its successors, to be used for the benefit of (purposes, organizations, Field of Interest funds, or concepts) in accordance with the general corporate purposes of said organization.

Bequest form for general purposes

I give and bequeath the sum of $____ to Communities Foundation of Texas, Inc., or its successors, to be used in accordance with the general corporate purposes of said organization.

48 1698

Establishing a fund at Communities Foundation of Texas can be an easy and rewarding process. With more than 400 individual funds in place, the Foundation has had experience working with a variety of donations. Of course, each fund is treated individually and is highly personalized. Typically, a fund is created with a simple letter of agreement or by instructions in a will. Below are the basic steps for creating a fund with Communities Foundation of Texas.

1. Determine how much you would like to contribute to charity this year or over the next several years, or how much you could set aside as a permanent corpus to generate income for charitable giving.

2. Outline any conditions or specifications of the fund. Choose a name for the fund if it is to be an Advise and Consult fund or a Designated fund. This information will be used to develop a brief letter of agreement.

3. Make your gift to Communities Foundation of Texas. Gifts to create an Advise and Consult fund should be so indicated. For unrestricted funds, simply indicate that the gift is for meeting the needs of the community as determined by the board of trustees. Designated funds should be stipulated to provide support for a charitable beneficiary or an area of interest.

   Note:
   Gifts of cash are just one form of donation. CFT accepts gifts of closely-held stock, ordinary securities, real estate, oil and mineral interests, bonds and certain other assets, and objects such as art and antiques.

4. Advise the Foundation as to possible distributions which would be consistent with the donor's charitable interests. After the initial gift, the Foundation's board of trustees has final authority over the distribution of all grants. This is to ensure compliance with the donor's original charitable intentions, to protect the donor's deduction, and to comply with various laws, rules and regulations.

Benefits to Donors

* Your gift will keep giving, benefitting the community for years to come.

* Donations are tax deductible as gifts to a "public charity," thus allowing donors to eliminate or alleviate certain taxes and avoid "disqualified persons" rules encountered when giving through a private foundation.

* The Foundation will assist in grant recipient research, and will closely monitor grant results.

* A donor's name will be continually acknowledged, thus preserving a family legacy in perpetuity.

* Communities Foundation of Texas engages outside professional money managers as well as on-staff fund management to ensure a sound investment program.

As a thriving component of the Dallas/Fort Worth area, the nonprofit sector dispenses its influence to all segments of society. Local citizens benefit as both contributors to nonprofit organizations and recipients of services provided by these groups. Through its grant-making process, Communities Foundation of Texas channels financial support to qualified nonprofit agencies encompassing the areas of arts and culture, civic improvement, education, health, social service and youth. The following section reports a representative sampling of organizations sustained through contributions from the Foundation.

Social Service

The diversity of the Dallas/Fort Worth area is apparent not only in the wide array of business, scientific and cultural endeavors, but also in its vast and colorful palette of social services. Distribution of funds by Communities Foundation to social service organizations includes those which address both general and specific needs.

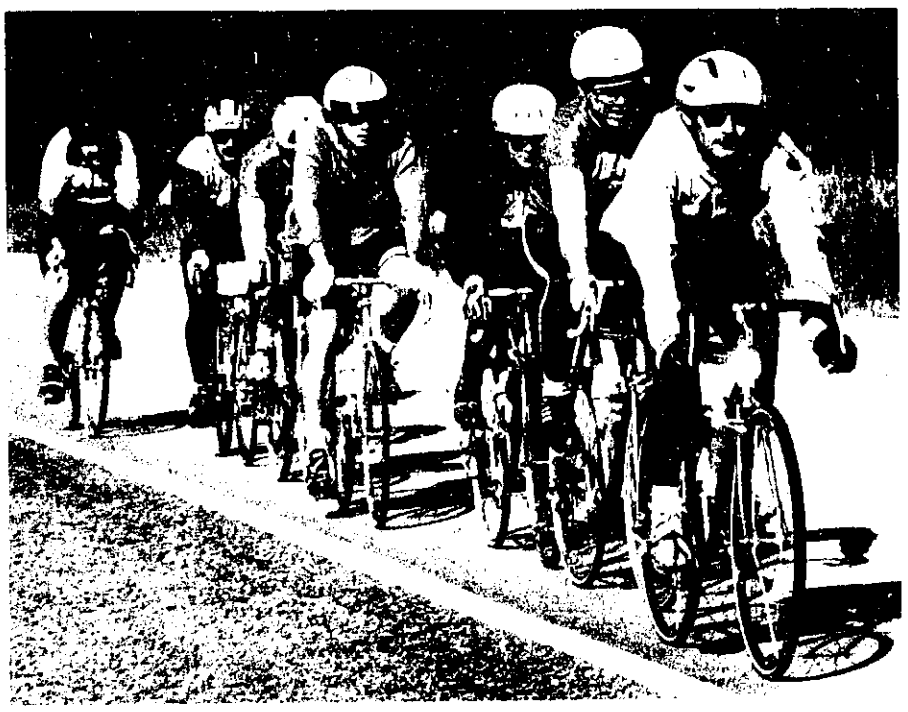
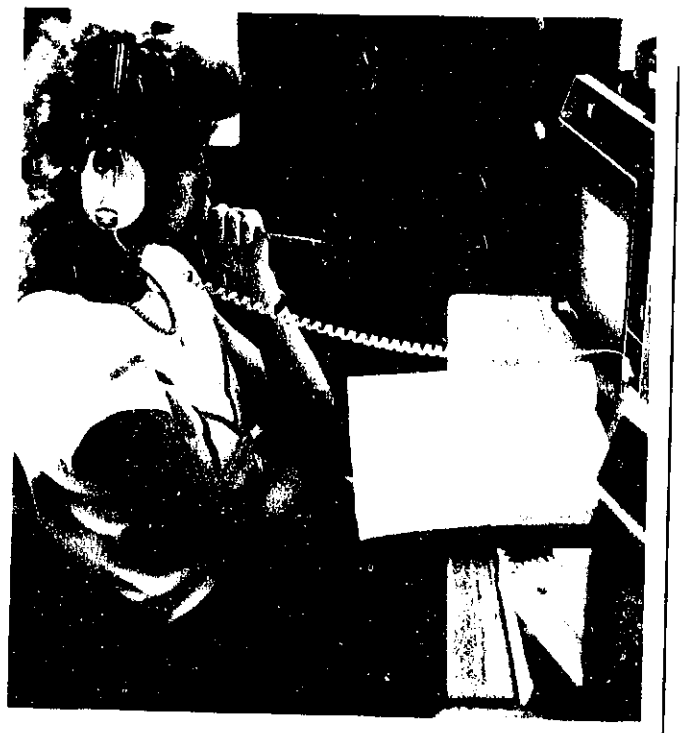
The neighborhoods of East Dallas represent a melting pot of cultures, including Asians, Blacks, Caucasians and Hispanics. Vietnamese refugees must deal not only with cultural differences, but must also try to overcome language and educational barriers. The Vietnamese Mutual Assistance Association (VMAA) offers tutoring, translation, scouting and sports programs. A grant from the Foundation was applied toward establishing a headquarters for the VMAA.

With crime statistics on the rise, the Dallas Police Department has introduced a new weapon to help them fight back. "Blue Max," a remote-controlled robot, has joined the police force to assist with community education and crime awareness. In support of this prevention program, Communities Foundation awarded $16,800 from the W. W. Caruth, Jr. fund for the purchase of the robot.



In an effort to address race relations in the city of Dallas, community leaders and volunteers joined hands in researching and devising a plan to move toward greater harmony. Commissioned by Dallas Mayor Annette Strauss and funded by sources such as Communities Foundation, Dallas Together seeks to address issues of ethnic and cultural differences, and to develop plans to integrate the Dallas community in combatting racial problems.

Hunger, homelessness and health care have fallen under the umbrella of concern offered by the Greater Dallas Community of Churches (GDCC). This organization identifies needs in the community and mobilizes civic and congregational resources to assist in such areas as urban issues and counseling. Communities Foundation has awarded funding for the purchase of a computer network system and office equipment, and for the establishment of the organization's Block Partnership Program.



Senior citizens combine their skills, resources and time to create handcrafted items to sell at a store called Prime Time Treasures. Working through the Assistance League of Dallas, which organizes philanthropic services in the Dallas community, local seniors established a market for their wares. This entrepreneurial effort not only serves as a supplemental income, but also as an enhancement to the individual's self-worth.

Crippling society with physical, emotional, social and financial devastation, the AIDS epidemic rages throughout the population, infecting and killing men, women and children. Besides coping with the effects of the disease, persons with AIDS must also contend with securing transportation for medical appointments, school pick-up for children affected by AIDS, and other social service appointments. Oak Lawn Community Services offers a Care-A-Van program for clients of the local AIDS service providers. A Foundation grant, matched by a federal transportation grant, was used to purchase a vehicle to expand the ride program.

The trap of homelessness ensnares thousands of people in the city of Dallas each year. In hopes of breaking the poverty cycle and getting people back on their feet, Interfaith Housing Coalition provides rent-free, furnished housing; job and budget skills training; medical and dental assistance; and other services over a three-month period. Funding from Communities Foundation helps support this organization.

A student operates audio/visual equipment at a Dallas County Community College to enhance her learning and understanding.

Education

Education is an important key to opening doors to future opportunities. From elementary through secondary level schools to colleges, universities and scientific research institutions, the Dallas/Fort Worth area is comprised of a wealth of exceptional teaching facilities. Support for education given by Communities Foundation of Texas is represented by the following sample of grants.

Reading the daily newspaper or filling out a job application may seem like easy tasks, but not for those who are unable to read. Through Operation LIFT (Literacy Instruction for Texas), adults learn basic reading, writing and spelling skills. Since 1961, trained volunteers have taught basic English communication skills. Because of funding by Communities Foundation and other support organizations, instruction through Operation LIFT is offered at no charge.

A well-structured and disciplined environment, together with an individualized and caring attitude, proves to be an effective formula for education at the Notre Dame of Dallas School. This school is the only one of its kind in the Dallas area to offer special education and vocational training for the mild-to-moderate range of mentally-handicapped children. A $15,000 grant from Communities Foundation has been applied to the renovation of a newly acquired building.

Spanish-speaking children who enter public schools without the ability to converse in English often face communication barriers. Lack of conversational skills may handicap the student and result in educational, emotional and social problems. Horas Alegres Bilingual Preschool, sponsored by St. Luke's United Methodist Church, offers low-cost English instruction for Spanish-speaking preschoolers. The primary objective of the school is to equip children with a firm foundation in English to prepare them for public school. Communities Foundation has awarded funding to help supplement tuition scholarships.

A combination of gifted educators and motivated students are ingredients found in the plan for success at The Hockaday School. Celebrating 75 years as an independent, private educational facility, Hockaday offers education for kindergarten through 12th grade. As the counterpart to Hockaday, The St. Mark's School of Texas is a private institution for boys, offering first-rate instruction and resources. Funding has been awarded to both schools by several donor-advised funds of Communities Foundation of Texas.

A library is an important focal point of any educational institution. The Mary Couts Burnett Library at Texas Christian University (TCU) serves as a resource to students and faculty, as well as to citizens, researchers and students within the community. The Foundation helped to fund the automation of the library, which will help strengthen the university's emphasis on research and advanced study.

Health

As the nation is bombarded with critical healthcare issues, Dallas maintains its stride and national reputation in research and development, while keeping pace with the medical treatment needs of local residents. Funding provided by Communities Foundation of Texas helps respond to problems ranging from the AIDS epidemic to birth defects rehabilitation to exorbitant costs associated with caring for senior citizens. The following examples illustrate the impact of some of the grants made by the Foundation.

Because a stay in the hospital can be a frightening experience for a child, Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center features carefully planned details which help to put children at ease. Staffed by a highly trained and specialized team of medical experts, the hospital is attuned to the unique physical and emotional needs of ill children and their parents. Communities Foundation awarded $40,000 for the creation of an outdoor playground and an audio testing room.

With third-degree burns covering nearly half of his body, an 11-year-old boy named Ketrick Jordan, and a team of expert physicians and nurses at Parkland Hospital, successfully fought to overcome this debilitating condition. Because of the severity of the burns, both of Ketrick's legs were amputated above the knees. The combined efforts of Parkland Hospital and Scottish Rite Hospital of Dallas facilitated the return of Ketrick to his feet, through diligent rehabilitation and the use of a specially-constructed pair of artificial legs provided by the hospitals. With his body on the mend, Communities Foundation of Texas stepped in to provide financial support for Ketrick's tuition at St. Anthony's School. The cooperative spirit of the Dallas community has helped this young boy conquer his misfortune. He has overcome physical and emotional barriers through his positive attitude and determination. Judging from his contagious smile and the speed in which he moves, Ketrick has proven the efforts of all to be a success!

In a Labor, Delivery and Recovery (LDR) room at Richardson Medical Center, an expectant mother is able to prepare for the birth process, deliver her baby and recover without ever being transferred to another room.

Arts and Culture

Musical, visual and performing arts are talents that blend cultures, races and age groups in mutual appreciation. Serving as a method of communication, these art forms provide a vehicle for expression by the performer and a cultural enrichment to the audience. The following is representative of organizations which the Foundation has recently supported.

Plans to establish the Frontiers of Flight Museum at the Dallas Love Field Airport have taken flight. The museum honors the accomplishments of such aviation pioneers as the Wright Brothers, Charles A. Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart. Funding provided by Communities Foundation has been applied toward the renovation of the airport facility for the museum.

One out of 10 women in the United States is at risk of developing breast cancer during her lifetime. In hopes of reducing these threatening figures, The Susan G. Komen Foundation provides funding for breast cancer research and screening, as well as for educational awareness programs. Because early detection of breast cancer increases the chances of successful treatment, the Komen Foundation strives to educate women of all ages on precautionary steps that can be taken. One of several grants from Communities Foundation of Texas was applied toward the establishment of the Parkland Memorial Breast Screening Center.

Keeping in step with growing population trends, Richardson Medical Center recently launched a major renovation campaign. To accommodate the more than 40 babies delivered at the hospital each month, a Foundation grant of $15,000 will assist in the expansion of the hospital's obstetrical unit, which was initially set up on an interim basis in 1986.

On display at the National Museum of Communications is the "Voice of America Control Console," which was used from 1955 to 1987 for the broadcasting of news and information to foreign countries.

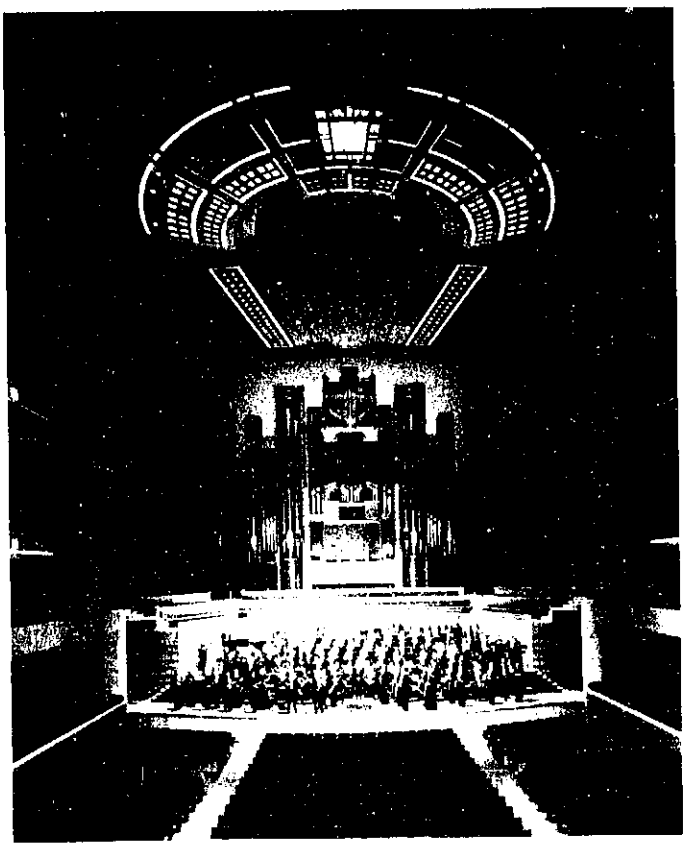
Egyptian artifacts, pyramids and mummies captured the attention of the city of Dallas during the Ramses the Great Exhibit. Presented by the Dallas Museum of Natural History, the event generated more than 1.2 million visitors. Communities Foundation awarded $15,000 to pay for the transportation and admission fee of Metroplex area students to enable them to view the exhibit. The Foundation also set aside $300,000 from a donor-advised fund to help underwrite the Ramses exhibit.

Instrumentalists and vocalists may perform separately or harmonize together to create a symphony of sound. The Carrollton Chamber Orchestra, which premiered in 1986, performs public concerts for the Carrollton-Farmers Branch area. Foundation funding helped support a special performance of the orchestra and the Texas Women's University singers.



The Dallas Classic Guitar Society was born in 1979 out of an interest by students and professors of the Southern Methodist University Meadows School of the Arts. To enhance sound delivery during a classical guitar performance, the Foundation awarded funds to purchase a portable acoustic sound shell for the Majestic Theater. This equipment will also benefit a variety of other art agencies which perform in the Majestic.

Classical literature comes to life as performers of the Shakespeare Festival of Dallas recreate the works of William Shakespeare. Founded in 1972, the Festival offers plays in the park which enhance the city's cultural diversity. Because of funding by organizations such as Communities Foundation, performances are presented free-of-charge to the public.

A splash of color and a sprinkling of sound embellish the educational curriculum for students in the Dallas Independent School District. Through Partnership for Arts, Culture and Education (PACE), students are exposed to a variety of presentations by Dallas area arts and cultural organizations.

Youth

Investing in the teaching and development of children helps to structure and solidify the foundation of a community's future. Communities Foundation supports programs which offer enrichment, guidance and recreation for local youth and their families.

Expectations rose to a crescendo as the Dallas Symphony Orchestra christened the new Morton H. Meyerson Center. Designed by internationally-reknowned I.M. Pei, this world-class facility is an example of a public-private sector partnership in the community. (Photo by Gittings Skipworth, Inc.)

One of the first hurdles in completing a college degree oftentimes is filling out an application for financial assistance. Students Targeting Adult Responsibility (STAR) seeks to solve the problems of diminishing enrollment in and completion of degrees from institutions of higher learning. STAR helps college-bound students find scholarships and monetary subsidies for their educations. A grant from Communities Foundation was applied toward the implementation of this strategy.

A child stricken with AIDS needs just as much love and care as a healthy child. Open Arms, Inc. reaches out to these children and their families by helping them obtain support in the form of education, treatment and child care. Open Arms, Inc. established Bryan's House, a home offering 24-hour care for children with AIDS or those who are not infected but who have parents or siblings who are. Communities Foundation helped fund equipment and supplies for the organization, as well as served as the initial fiduciary umbrella for the project.

"Blue Max" and "McGruff," educational robots of the Dallas and Balch Springs Police Departments, respectively, promote crime prevention and safety.

Merry-go-rounds spun and swings soared high as area youth participated in the summer "Send A Kid to Camp" program. The Dallas Park and Recreation Department joined forces with local nonprofit agencies, as well as private and community funding sources, to offer structured recreation programs for 4000 to 6000 children in the city. Communities Foundation of Texas served not only as a financial supporter of the program, but also as fiduciary organization.

As an alternative to processing young offenders through the Juvenile Justice System and assigning them directly to the county detention center, they are sometimes routed through a temporary housing facility such as the Letot Center. Letot offers shelter to children and adolescents categorized as chronic runaways and chemical dependents. CFT awarded $75,000 to help fund the construction of the family crisis unit, which will offer 24-hour family counseling for clients. CFT also manages a fund designated to help meet special needs of the Letot Center and its clients.

Civic Improvement

Citizens of the Dallas/Fort Worth area boast of a strong, yet ever-changing civic environment. With a confident air, the community promotes efforts to maintain and develop the aesthetic appeal of the local landscape as well as highlights activities oriented to the enrichment of the community's civic climate. Grants to civic organizations are represented by the following examples.

After marking time to an unchanging beat for a number of years, it's time for the city of Dallas to step forward and march on to a creative expansion of the city and its people. Goals for Dallas has instigated a plan of action to help local leaders and citizens shape the future of the community. Over a two-year period, this group assessed current needs, produced several goals with secure leadership behind them, and is now working to achieve these goals. Funding from the Foundation has been awarded in support of this plan.

Visitors to the Dallas Zoo will soon be "swinging through the trees" as they glide over the new gorilla habitat in monorail cars. A $68,000 grant from Communities Foundation completed the funding for a major renovation campaign at the zoo, to create naturalistic settings for the animals in captivity. Zoo officials intend to replace conventional methods of displaying animals behind steel bars and concrete slabs with a physical environment that is more consistent with the original homelands of the animals.

In order to preserve the natural heritage of the Lone Star State for the enjoyment of current as well as future generations, the Texas Nature Conservancy has intervened with protective efforts to prevent imminent threats to the ecological tranquility of Texas. Funding provided by Communities Foundation has supported several environmental preservation projects, including the Matagorda Island project to protect the whooping crane habitat. Foundation support also helped protect a rare unplowed 4,000 acres of blackland prairie in North Texas.

A peaceful scene of Village Creek in the 2,138-acre Roy E. Larsen Sandyland Sanctuary was established in order to preserve one of the most unique and ecologically diverse natural areas in the Big Thicket region of Texas.

Shots rang out on November 22, 1963, causing the death of President John F. Kennedy and imprinting a scarring memory on the city of Dallas. The sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository has been transformed into a site portraying the events of the Kennedy assassination that occurred between November 22 and 25, 1963, as well as focusing on the life and career of JFK. Communities Foundation has awarded more than $20,000 to assist in building this educational exhibit.

With a clang and a whistle, the late 1800s in Dallas has come back to life with the rejuvenation of the McKinney Avenue Trolley. Restored by the McKinney Avenue Transit Authority, the trolley cars serve as a link to the city's historical past, as well as provide transportation from the Crescent Hotel and McKinney Avenue restaurants and offices to downtown Dallas. Communities Foundation climbed aboard the effort by providing partial funding toward this historical project.

Jenny, a gorilla at the Dallas Zoo, awaits the move into her new home, the Jake L. Hamon Gorilla Conservation and Research Center within the zoo's Wilds of Africa expansion.

As they take a little time out for rest and relaxation, a child and a houseparent share a special moment at the Buckner Children's Home.

Communities Foundation of Texas welcomes grant applications year-round for all sorts of projects. It is the philosophy of the Foundation to encourage grant seekers to submit grant applications and to discuss the feasibility of their proposals with our grant administration department. Distributions are made from our unrestricted fund three times during the year.

To qualify for a grant, agencies should obtain a copy of the Foundation's grant guidelines, which requests complete information about the organization or project to be considered. Information should be submitted prior to the application deadline to receive ample review. Deadlines for applications are always the first day of the months of February, July and October.

Once the application has been submitted, Foundation staff review the proposal, and often request additional information. If appropriate, Foundation staff will conduct an on-site visit of the agency. Recommendations are made to the Distribution Committee, which will make the final recommendation to the full board of trustees on all grants. If a grant is denied, the applicant may resubmit the proposal at a later date.

It is the policy of the Foundation to provide grants to 501(c)(3) tax-exempt, nonprofit organizations that facilitate a need in the community. Organizations that receive funding may be old, established, traditional charities or innovative, new agencies that emerge to serve a distinct and needed purpose. Each organization must demonstrate sound management, fiscal responsibility and a program that does not duplicate existing efforts. Occasionally the Foundation may create and manage programs of its own where a need exists, and there is no appropriate agency to address that need.

Notes to Financial Statements
June 30, 1989 and 1988

1. Purpose of Foundation and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Purpose

Communities Foundation of Texas, Inc. (Foundation) is a nonprofit Texas corporation with no capital stock and is classified by the Internal Revenue Service as tax-exempt under Section 501(c)(3) and as a nonprivate foundation under Section 509(a)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. The Foundation is responsible for charitable funds and the income generated by funds of many donors. The Foundation is committed to promoting the well-being of mankind and to serving the general charitable, educational and scientific needs of the inhabitants of Texas and adjoining states through charitable grants at the discretion of the Board of Trustees.

Principles of Accounting

The financial statements have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting.

Fund Types

Following is a description of the types of funds administered by the Foundation.

Administrative Fund - Nonrestricted

Nonrestricted administrative funds include the following types of gifts:

A. Unrestricted Gifts - These are general funds, the use of which is determined by the trustees of the Foundation.
B. Field of Interest Gifts - Donor indicates a specific area of philanthropy to which gift should be directed.
C. Memorials - Donor pays tribute to a departed loved one or friend, proceeds of which are used by the trustees of the Foundation for specific or general charitable purposes.
D. Operational Gifts - Donor creates funds for the operational needs of the Foundation such as the special fund or endowment fund.
E. Advise and Consult Gifts - Donor may give advice to the Foundation regarding disbursements from his contributions; however, the Foundation is not bound by the advice.
F. Distributions from 509(a)(3) Organizations - The Foundation receives income distributions from or controls the election to the boards of eight organizations described in Section 509(a)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. The distributions are used to make grants in accordance with the charitable purposes of those who established the funds. The assets of these support foundations are not included in the accompanying financial statements.

Administrative Funds - Restricted
The assets donated to the Foundation are restricted as to disposition during the life of the named donor.

Charitable Remainder Funds
The donor and/or any other beneficiary receives income for life. The gift passes to the Foundation upon death of the donor or beneficiary.

Designated Funds
The donor designates specific purposes for the use of the gift.

Investment Securities
The Foundation has adopted the following policies as a basis for valuing certain investments:

A. Investments acquired through gift or bequest are recorded at market value as of the acquisition date.

B. Marketable securities purchased by the Foundation with pooled cash are recorded at book value because it is the intention of management to hold them to maturity; however, the market value of these investments is not materially different from the recorded value. All other investment securities are reported at market value at the balance sheet date. The adjustment to recognize the increase or decrease in market value of the marketable securities portfolio from one period to the next is credited or charged to various fund balances as unrealized gain or loss during the period. When a permanent decline in an individual security is indicated, the recorded value is reduced to net realizable value and reported as a realized loss by a charge to the applicable fund balance. Realized gains and losses on the disposition of marketable securities are credited or charged to the applicable fund balance.

Oil and Gas Interests
Oil and gas interests are stated at the estimated fair market value at date of donation based on the present value of estimated future royalties from the oil and gas reserves. Depletion is computed on a basis which approximates the units of production method.

Property, Plant and Equipment
Property, plant and equipment is stated at cost or estimated fair market value at date of donation. Depreciation is computed based on expected useful lives as follows:

| Assets | Lives | Method |
|---|---|---|
| Headquarters building and improvements | 40 years | Straight-line |
| Office equipment and furniture | 10 years | Straight-line |
| Automobiles | 3 years | Straight-line |

Maintenance, repairs and minor replacements are charged to operations as incurred; major replacements and betterments are capitalized. The cost and accumulated depreciation of property retired or sold is removed from the respective accounts and gains and losses are included in the statement of activity.

Real Estate Held for Investment
Real estate held for investment is stated at estimated fair market value at date of donation or at cost if purchased. Improved properties are depreciated using the straight-line method over expected useful lives ranging from 15 to 30 years.

Partnership Interests
Partnership interests are recorded at the Foundation's pro rata share of the partnership's recorded book value and consist of an interest in Rannor Associates, Limited and an interest in Sandler Associates.

The Foundation holds an eighty percent interest in Rannor Associates, Limited. The primary asset of Rannor Associates, Limited is a note receivable collateralized by real estate. The net assets and results of operations of Rannor Associates, Limited are not material in relation to those of the Foundation.

The Foundation also holds a limited interest of less than five percent in Sandler Associates, a New York limited partnership. Sandler Associates is a money management group that invests primarily in securities of companies involved in the media industry.

Investment in Subsidiary

The Foundation reports its investment in Climax Timber Company, a wholly-owned, profit-oriented subsidiary, under the equity method of accounting. The net assets and results of operations of Climax Timber Company are not material in relation to those of the Foundation.

COUNTY LIBRARIAN

April 10, 1991

Honorable Roy Cordes, Jr.
Commissioner R.L. Bud O'Shieles
Commissioner Grady Prestage
Commissioner Alton Pressley
Commissioner Bob Lutts

Gentlemen:

I would like to request approval for a change order in the amount of $128.80 for the purpose of adding the word "LIBRARY" to the awning at the entrance of the Mamie George Library.

We think that a large word like "LIBRARY" will be seen and recognized by passersby, thus making the library even more accessible.

There will be additional signage on the building and on the doors identifying this building as "Fort Bend County Libraries - Mamie George Branch".

Please find attached the architect's recommendation, the contractors request and a sketch of what we intend to do.

I will appear before you on Monday, April 15, 1991, to present this matter.

Sincerely,

Roman S. Bohachevsky

Re: Proposal for Consulting Services to the County

Dear Mr. Drachenberg:

As requested, I am pleased to submit this proposal to provide consulting services to Fort Bend County in assisting it in its review of the latest FEMA floodplain maps. The specific scope of work to be performed under this contract involves the following:

(1) Review all of the FEMA floodplain maps recently sent to the County to identify any inconsistencies or discrepancies in the floodplain and floodway elevations;

(2) Verify that all map revisions and/or amendments have been incorporated into these latest FEMA maps, based on the information available to the County; and

(3) Prepare written comments based upon the results of the above tasks and provide any recommendations as to any further and more detailed evaluation that may be needed concerning the accurate delineation of the County's major floodplains and floodways.

The above review will be performed using the FEMA maps that will be provided by the County. This scope of work will be completed within 15 days of receipt of the maps and the available revisions and amendments from the County. Compensation for the above consulting services will be on an hourly basis at a rate of $100 per hour, up to an amount not to exceed $5,000 without prior approval from Commissioner's Court.

If the above proposal is acceptable to Commissioner's Court, have the County Judge sign below and return a signed copy of this proposal to the undersigned.

Very Truly Yours,

Re: Traffic Study - Soledad Drive, Mission Bend

Dear Sir:

Per the attached sketch, a traffic study was conducted during the week of March 4. Please find also attached Drawing 9105 showing the existing traffic signs, vehicle counts and the recommended additional control signs to make this street safer. The recommendations in summary are; (1) make Solida Del Sol a 3-way stop and Valinda a 4-way stop, (2) add 2 - 25 MPH speed limit signs southbound and 2 - 25 MPH speed limit signs northbound at the locations shown, (3) remove or prune the shrubs indicated at Valinda and Sierra Grande to improve visibility.

Enforcement of the stop and speed limit signs remains the responsibility of the Sheriff's Department and local citizens must complain directly to that department about violations.

Please note that the Solida Del Sol intersection is not county maintained which is in San Miguel, Section 7.

If you should have any questions, please call me or Karl Baker.

Sincerely,

Ronald D. Drachenberg

GLORY HOPKINS
District Clerk

State of Texas
County of Fort Bend

TO: COUNTY JUDGE ROY CORDES, JR. & MEMBERS OF COMMISSIONERS' COURT

FROM: GLORY HOPKINS, DISTRICT CLERK

RE: LINE ITEM TRANSFER FOR COMMISSIONERS' COURT MEETING - APRIL 22, 1991

DATE: APRIL 17, 1991

I would like $13,200 transferred from Line Item #0200 (Salaries & Labor) to Line Item #0201 (Temporary or Extra Help).

With the approval of Personnel, Ester Davidson went from Full-Time to Part-Time and is working daily until 2:30 p.m. because of baby sitting problems. She is an excellent worker and it would cost more to train a new employee. We do have money in the Salaries & Labor budget to transfer to Temporary.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Glory Hopkins

INTRODUCTION

Training Partnerships: Linking Employers and Providers

American employers spend about $30 billion, or 1 to 2 percent of their payrolls annually on formalized training for their workers. About 69 percent or $21 billion is invested in training that companies design, develop, and deliver using in-house resources. But, 31 percent or $9 billion is expended on training that is purchased from outside providers.

Several large players have slices of the $9 billion training provider pie. Four-year colleges and universities get the largest slice at about $2.9 billion. Community colleges and technical institutes ring up about $1.4 billion, while vocational and other schools provide about $760 million in training. Investment in training provided by community organizations and private instructors, are underwritten by government funding accounts for another $928 million. Professional, trade, and labor organizations provide about $1.3 billion. And the training industry, composed of large and small suppliers of training assistance, provides about $1.5 billion in training services to employers annually. (See Figure 1).

Providing training to companies is big business. And it's growing. Technological and process innovations are driving skill requirements upward as workers struggle to adapt to changing times. Complicating this picture is a shifting demographic landscape that has America's existing workforce aging and its entry-level labor pool shrinking, creating a whole new set of challenges around basic skills deficiencies and learning styles. The massive job of preparing workers to fine-tune their existing skills and acquire new ones is often too big for an in-house training department to handle alone. So, increasingly, employers are turning to outside training providers for assistance.

This report looks at the provider community and how employer-provider relationships are developed and sustained over time. Through checklists and decision-trees, it also attempts to assist employers in making more informed decisions regarding the purchase of provider training; and it aims to help providers understand more fully what drives employers to reach the "make or buy" decision.

Partnerships between employers and training providers such as educational institutions, unions, public job training underwriters, and private training suppliers are common. Over the years, they have become widely recognized as an important tool for cost-effectively meeting the evolving training needs of employers.

As employers have become more sophisticated about the availability, quality, and services of outside training providers, they have moved to build new and more flexible partnerships. Often, they have taken the initiative in developing cost-effective, long-term relationships that spawn a renewable source of skills and knowledge.

Providers have done their part as well to foster and sustain partnerships. They have worked hard to be flexible and adaptable in response to employer needs. And, they have aggressively moved to portray their services in terms of return on investment for both an employer and its community.

In fact, the idea of partnerships has become so popular and grown so quickly in all fields that it has spawned a litany of terms to capture the essence of these endeavors. One of the most well-known and popular phrases to describe relationships between employers and outside providers is linkages. Linkages has become the umbrella term under which partnerships, joint ventures, and connections occur. But the fact remains that organizations come together for many different purposes, in many different ways, and with varying degrees of involvement. Linkages, partnerships, joint ventures, and other employer-provider connections are not one and the same. Each of these relationships has distinguishing characteristics like the many hues of a color; they can take many shapes and forms. In some relationships, formal constraints are placed on the interacting parties; in others there are informal boundaries and voluntary chains which bind the two together. Still in others, the relationship is clearer; it is based on services received and money paid for those services. This report focuses on those defined relationships which are referred to by human resource development practitioners as linkages.

AS PER ORIGINAL

Linkages, are formal, contractual relationships between employers and training providers that exist for the purpose of providing job-specific training to a targeted group of employees. Some even say that this relationship is actually contract training. Whether the contract is explicitly or implicitly defined, the conditions are set and met, whereupon payment is made. Linkages are generally initiated by the employer to meet specific training needs. Employers pay external providers for training services and this pay-for-hire format drives program design and delivery methodology.

While this report focuses primarily on linkages, it is important to discuss the other kinds of relationships that, while less formal and results-oriented, have led employers toward a river of resources and helped to create the linkage bridge. These other relationships are largely advisory with the primary function of promoting information exchange. For employers this may mean advising a provider about labor market trends, industry skill needs, or the specifics of education or training programs that will prepare individuals to find jobs in the community. It may even mean an employer encouraging an outside provider to train students in specific occupations by lending equipment for the training or consulting on curriculum design or delivery. For the provider, this kind of relationship hinges on providing feedback to the employer about provider capabilities in preparing the community's future workforce or suggesting ways that employers can assist the provider in constructing strategies to meet industry needs.

Employers often view this kind of information exchange as a community service. Consequently, such connections do not necessarily result in the employer hiring individuals trained by the provider. In fact, the main characteristics of these relationships are that:

- Employers do not pay to have training set up or provided. The provider establishes the curriculum and enrolls students.
- Trainees are not current employees of the employer/advisor and may never be future employees even if they are well-trained because the relationship does not include hiring commitments.
- Employers sign no contracts and pay no money to support the training.

These looser relationships can and often do lead to the establishment of linkages. If, for example, the president of a local company serves on a community college advisory board, there is a connection between employer and provider. If, after attending several meetings, the company president concludes that the college can meet some of the firm's training needs, the president may offer to pay the college for establishing a specific training program for company employees. A linkage is established.

Conversely, an employer's purchase of occupational training programs from a technical institute may lead to an advisory role or to donations of equipment to assist the institute in serving the community. Either of these two kinds of relationships can spawn the other and can be interdependent.

There are many kinds of relationships that are related to the concept of linkages. These relationships are forged in many ways. Some of the most common are:

- Advisory Committees—composed of representatives from the local business community who usually have a sense of their firm's future training needs. Once on the committee, the representatives often participate long enough to gain a full appreciation of the institution; usually they are involved in more than one event or cycle of the school's program. Advisory committees provide advice to an educational institution's leadership and administration; help identify community employment and training needs; develop and support long-range goals of educational institutions; and, serve as a communication link between educational institutions and the private sector. Advisory committees and their members can be valuable resources and effective tools. They help educational institutions build state-of-the-art curriculum and give employers the opportunity to influence the future workforce. Their effectiveness depends on careful selection of members, clear delineation of committee responsibilities and roles, and attention to meeting schedules, arrangements, and communication.

- Cooperative Work Experiences—place approximately 200,000 students per year in private sector jobs. In co-ops, students receive an introduction to the realities of the workplace, get an opportunity to apply classroom concepts and principles, and earn wages. One distinguishing characteristic of this relationship is that students are the conduits of information between employers and education providers. Students often return from co-op experiences with valuable insights that reflect current practices, problems, and technological developments in the private sector. Educators, in turn, use these insights to remain current. Employers gain the opportunity to contribute important suggestions for curriculum development, learn about potential employees, and receive these contributions at less than full-time salary costs. A co-op's effectiveness is based on how carefully it is developed. It should ensure realistic, educational work activities for students and allow employers to benefit from student's insights and skills.
- Personnel Exchanges—It is extremely common for educational institutions to hire employees from local industries as part-time faculty to teach special one-time courses or to teach on a regular basis in the evenings, on weekends, or during the summer. It is also common for employers to provide skill upgrading programs in industry settings for technical faculty; these programs are offered for extended periods of employment, often during the summer or other semester breaks.
- Curriculum Sharing—Post-secondary institutions and industry often share training curriculum that can be used in academic and industrial settings. When industry shares, it is often investing in a job-ready workforce; students are receiving state-of-the-art, tested, and applied training. At the same time, post-secondary institutions using industry curricula recognize their applicability to the workforce and often find that those students move more quickly into the ranks of the employed.
- Continuing Education—reaches beyond job-related training and focuses on the future; it reaches workers who want to expand skills and knowledge beyond their current jobs. Continuing education may consist of working towards a degree, a certificate, or simply taking a course relating to a particular field or discipline. Many schools offer credit or continuing education units (CEUs) for continuing education courses. In some cases, continuing education may be a broad requirement of employment. In others, it is pursued for personal reasons such as self-improvement or career development. If an employer considers the education pursued as job-related, the employer will pick up the tab—usually through tuition reimbursement. Overall, continuing education requires very little cooperation between employers and providers. In fact, it is actually a linkage between an employee and a training provider, with the employer playing a very minor role, perhaps as a coordinator or a conduit of information. The employer rarely has any input into the design or development of continuing education curricula.
- Networking—an effective means for individuals to stay abreast of new developments by talking with their peers. Many organizations and professional associations provide a forum for the exchange of information between professional trainers, educators, and employers. These associations are geared toward improving program delivery, encouraging scholarly attention in the field, and elevating the image of their specialty area. Interchanges among members of associations expose the members to new technological developments and state-of-the-art knowledge. Even professionals outside these organizations have access to association information through journals, seminars, and conferences.

As stated earlier, these connections are informal, loosely structured relationships between employers and potential suppliers of training programs. They may assist in the formation of linkages by creating a dialogue between the two entities and laying the foundation for future dealings—for formal relationships that consist of a business transaction between a buyer (the employer) and a seller (the training provider). The dynamics of these linkage relationships are explored throughout the rest of this report.

Is 'customer service in government' an oxymoron? Plenty of agencies are trying to prove it isn't.

PUTTING THE SERVICE BACK INTO PUBLIC SERVICE

By Ron Zemke

AS PER ORIGINAL 48 2186

Ross Baker lost his wallet. Or it was stolen. He isn't sure which. Either way, it's gone.

For Baker, a professor of political science at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, NJ, the incident led to a sojourn in that murky corner of The Twilight Zone known as "Identity Reconstruction." It's a game of sorts. The playing rule is that they won't issue you an ID card until you produce an ID card, but the reason you are there in the first place is that all your ID cards are kaput. One of the most harrowing moves on the board is Drivers' License Replacement.

Baker related his experience in American Demographics magazine: "Getting a new driver's license led me into the dark and fearful labyrinth of the state department of motor vehicles. The DMV is where the middle class gets a crash course in what it's like to be a welfare recipient. My first stop was at a desk marked 'Intake,' making me feel like a piece of raw sewage. I sat for an hour in a room that seemed to be brightly lit only for the purpose of exposing chewing-gum residue on the floor."

Pamela Derby Dalton

Baker doubtless developed new appreciation for an old joke: "They found Jimmy Hoffa. Where? In line at the Jersey DMV."

Chris Cox doesn't laugh. As chief of staff for the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles, Cox was one of the people charged directly by Gov. Thomas Kean with making the system work again after 30 years of neglect and abuse. A massive computer crash in 1985 had immobilized the entire DMV and turned a harsh spotlight on the division and its problems. Blue-ribbon panels, commissions and study groups were convened. Gaggles of consultants pondered the situation. They all reached the same conclusion: Stop what you're doing and do something else.

The pressure was on. The governor's 1985 inaugural address pledged that the New Jersey DMV would become the best in the nation. The attorney general, head of the agency in which the DMV is housed, gave Cox and her people a direct order. "He told us to change from being regulation- and enforcement-centered to being customer-service-centered and retail-operations-focused," she says. Nothing less than a complete cultural turnabout was necessary.

Has the New Jersey DMV become the best in the nation? Cox is blunt: "Do we still have horror stories? You bet we do. Sometimes I think we've barely begun. Are we better? You bet we are. I've just had to work on setting up a system to share complimentary letters with people. We've never had complimentary letters before. Until pretty recently we were the scourge of the public advocate's office. The majority of complaints they received were about us."

Cox and her colleagues received an unusual compliment recently. A New Jersey consultant named David Forrest was so astonished by the friendly, courteous treatment he received when he took his car to his local inspection center for a safety check that he wrote an article about the DMV's turnaround for the July issue of the Training and Development Journal.

What have they done to the New Jersey DMV? Just about everything. Old facilities are being replaced with modern, pleasant ones that have a unique and uniform look. "Our goal in planning was to have DMV offices no more than a 20-minute drive from any citizen," says Cox. Work flow and forms were completely rethought. "We used to look for ways to make the work easier for us. Now, when we redesign work, we do it to make things as easy as possible for the customer." And a massive amount of training went on. Cross-training, technical skills, customer care, personal growth. . .and they are still at it.

Most of the planning and the change ideas came from DMV people, says Cox. Thirteen groups of 10 participants worked with facilitators to create a customer-focused planning process. Every proposed change had to begin with a definition of who the customers are and how this change would benefit them. Cox's most important insight from the effort: "If you are going to make real, lasting change for the customer, you have to make real, lasting change in the infrastructure of the organization."

Why Bother?

Her story may be more dramatic than most, but Cox is just one of a growing number of state government officials, managers and human resources development (HRD) types from Maine to California who are making serious attempts to improve the way their agencies treat law-abiding, tax-paying, form-filling-out, drivers-license-losing citizens. Why the sudden spate of concern for customers? After all, government is a monopoly. If you don't like the way you're treated at the DMV—or the runaround you get at the department of revenue, or the stone wall you run into at natural resources, or the work ethic of the road-repair crews routinely caught goofing off by your local TV station's Action News team—you can't take your business to the competition.

One factor (let's face it) is merely that service is in vogue this season. "How would you dare not be in favor of better customer service today? It's safe, it's motivating, and it's 'in,' " says one skeptical government old-timer, who preferred not to be identified. "Really, though, it's as much for ourselves as it is for the public. Sure, we want to put the 'service' back in public service, as I heard someone say. But there is a need for us not only to treat the public better and be more 'user friendly' but to treat each other better and to reinstill some pride in the jobs people in government do. We've lost sight of that under the pressures to hold costs, enforce regulations and survive dealing with an often hostile public. We need the focus for us."

An often-told tale in Minnesota holds that customer relations and service quality became hot items on the agendas of state government officials after Gov. Rudy Perpich was denied a renewal of his fishing license. At the time, he was on his way to the ceremony in which he would officially open the fishing season. Seems Perpich couldn't produce enough corroborating identification and was told, in effect, "Sure, pal, and I'm the Queen of England."

Sandra J. Hale, commissioner of administration for Minnesota's Department of Administration, credits the governor all right, but not because of anything as trivial as the local mythology suggests. "Between his first and second terms, the governor worked in the private sector, traveled and worked in Europe, and came back convinced that government—on the administrative side—should be more concerned with customer satisfaction and creating [services that people value]." Perpich pushed the message that whether you favor big government or small, "the taxpayer is entitled to the best government we can create," says Hale. "That means quality, productivity and service are all important."

The state's efforts to improve government have won support and kudos from the Ford Foundation, as well as the Urban Institute. The latter is publishing a how-to book based on Minnesota's successful STEP program (Strive Toward Excellence in Performance), titled Managing Change: A Guide to Producing Innovation From Within. This is the program, says Hale, that helped the state focus on internal and external customers.

V. James Gutowski, executive deputy commissioner of labor for the State of New York, says that recent service improvements in his agency are a response to years of self-absorption. "We had to do it. Years of cutbacks and belt-tightening had led us to neglect the recipients of the services we were charged with providing. It didn't matter to us—in the narrow sense at least—that our way of doing things was inconvenient or irritating or irrational to the end-user. We were focused on cost control, budgets and doing more with less." New York, like Minnesota, is being credited with creating some innovative programs.

Donald E. Williams, commissioner for the Department of Motor Vehicles in Virginia, had different motives when he began the quest for better service in the early 1980s. "It's part politics and part people impact," he explains. "If you are an elected official, and the part of the government you serve in is giving your constituents problems, you do something about it—or you will hear someone else promising to fix that darned motor vehicle department during your next campaign."

Also, Williams points out, the motor vehicle department is one of the first contacts with the state a new resident makes. "I reasoned that if we can make that not just a satisfactory, but a surprisingly convenient, efficient and pleasant experience for that new resident, we have created a friend for the state government instead of an enemy."

Michael Barzelay, associate professor of public policy at Harvard University's Kennedy School, sees the changes underway in state governments in a broader historical context. There's more to the movement than a desire to do better or be seen as responsive or caring by citizens, he says. "Any change that seems to improve citizens' perception of value of service relative to cost is a plus to the top people in government—as long as it doesn't lead to labor problems," he observes. The reasons top elected or appointed officials favor service improvement may differ from those of civil-service careerists, he says, but in the end, "they are propelled in the same direction."

Barzelay suspects that a service-quality campaign, when handled right, can motivate career civil servants for several reasons. First, it focuses on the value of what they do. Since the improvement process requires them to solicit feedback from clients, they are reinforced when they learn they've done something well. Second, people are more enthusiastic and committed to any change project they control themselves. In internally driven service-improvement projects, employees get a chance to voice their own ideas and strategies for change, rather than being subjected to the whims of outsiders or oversight groups. And finally, there is the simple but powerful matter of doing something good for other people. Since many people really do go into public service to serve the public, they are motivated by knowing how well they are doing it—and by being empowered to do it better.

L. Peter Bast, an organization development consultant who trains front-line employees in customer-relations skills for the state of Minnesota, sees this personal motivation clearly in his classes. "State employees sometimes have a terrible self-image. You have angry people saying things to you like, 'You're an underworked, overpaid boob!' when they can't get everything done the way they want. You do get defensive and begin to feel abused and bad about yourself. So to learn that you can be in charge of helping that person, or be a part of a problem-solving team that streamlines the drivers' license renewal process from 29 minutes to one minute—that's pretty motivating."

AS PER ORIGINAL

Others see a similar need to lift people's spirits. Mary Hessler, manager of the state government division at Kaset Corp., a customer-service training and consulting company in Tampa, FL, feels that improving the psychological working conditions of government employees is intrinsic to the service-in-public-service movement. "Government officials are realizing that they need to create a climate that people want to be a part of if they are going to attract and retain good people. Without a good working environment, a malaise sets in on an agency—a feeling among employees that they are victims and powerless."

Harvard's Barzelay takes a couple of steps back from the firing line and looks at service improvement in state government from a broader perspective. "My sense is that this is the right time in the history of modern government to be talking about this issue," he says.

According to Barzelay's view, the driving force behind government oversight since turn-of-the-century reforms has been control. Civil service, testing for job qualifications, the protection of government jobs below a certain level are all responses to old problems of corruption, incompetence and waste.

But recent scandals at the federal level notwithstanding, the era in which state government was perceived as prone to wholesale graft and in need of constant policing is past, Barzelay asserts. The battle between Boss Tweed's scoundrels and Thomas Nast's reformers is over—the reformers won. "Government leaders no longer can campaign very effectively on pure reform issues," he says. "The focus is on purpose and vision and working-relationship issues. That is, of course, very consistent with the customer-service view of organizational behavior."

What They Are Doing

As a result of this new social agenda, hot ideas that have been circulating in the private sector—empowerment, opportunity, innovation, flexibility, choice, competitiveness and customer needs—have become part of the lexicon of progressive state governments. In some cases, they are changing the ways in which service is delivered by changing entrenched bureaucratic behavior. Some examples:

• Georgia: General Services Administration. Richard Weiskittel, director of GSA for the state of Georgia, can recite numbers when he talks about the difference a service orientation has made in his operation. The central supply group—one of four units he manages—has grown from $500,000 in sales in 1972 to a $14 million operation in 1989 by selling supplies competitively to city and county governments. "They don't have to buy from us," he says. "There is, in fact, pressure for counties and cities to buy locally from Cousin Charlie & Son. So to succeed there, we have to be cheaper and better to do business with."

Although state agencies in Georgia are required by law to buy from the central supply group, "that isn't what makes us go," Weiskittel claims. "It's service and competition." City and county sales accounted for 30 percent of the unit's gross in 1988, he adds.

The GSA's mission statement says, ". . . each service experience with us will be positive and satisfying for our customers." What is the department doing to fulfill that promise? For one thing, it has installed toll-free numbers and fax equipment to allow customers to place orders or report problems faster and easier. For another, front-line people are empowered to make good on any order that isn't correct. If the customer says he ordered 12 boxes of pencils and only received five, the GSA person sends out the missing seven. End of story—no audit, no accusations, no excuses. And all orders are guaranteed to be turned around in four days or less, or your money back.

Over in his car rental unit—formerly referred to as the transportation pool—Weiskittel also has installed an attitude more in tune with the new name. "If a car breaks down, we foot the bill and don't charge the customer. A few weeks ago a leaky car trunk caused water damage to the clothing one of our customers [a state employee] had in the trunk. We didn't charge her for the car rental and we paid for cleaning and replacing the clothing. We have to be accountable and responsible if we are going to run the service the way our customers want it run."

He is proud of the way employees have participated. "The other day our warehouse people figured out that if they went to two shifts we would be a lot more effective—receiving in the daytime and loading shipments on a swing shift. They figured it out, talked about how to accomplish it and presented me with a finished plan. I thought we might have to hire more people or even build more capacity. But the people doing the work figured out how to do it better using the same number of people and the same facilities."

The response from GSA's customers has been particularly gratifying. An evaluation card accompanies every order, and customers are giving central supply 97 percent good and excellent ratings, says Weiskittel. Thank-you notes acknowledge customer compliments, and an appropriate manager responds to complaints within 24 hours. And, yes, cards with compliments are read to front-line people. "It really charges people up to know that there is a real person out there who appreciates what they have done."

• Virginia: Department of Motor Vehicles. Since the DMV is likely to be the first state agency a new resident encounters, commissioner Donald E. Williams wants that contact to set a positive tone. So he has set out to make the Virginia DMV easy to do business with and its employees masters of customer relations. So far, Williams has installed express offices in shopping malls, adjusted the hours so that the DMV is open evenings and Saturdays, changed the renewal period for automobile licenses from one year to two, and is experimenting with something akin to automated teller machines for license renewals.

Williams also insists on continual fine-tuning. "We noticed that people sometimes seem bewildered when they come into a government office, so we've started experimenting with having a greeter in the lobbies. We serve 35,000 people a day. The more we can do to make it easy for them to work with us, the easier our jobs become," he says.

Recovery is a high priority as well.

When a computer system went down, letters of apology went out to every inconvenienced customer and to all the legislators who would be hearing from constituents about the problem. The commissioner's home phone is listed in the telephone book, and he takes calls from upset customers, both internal and external.

But service quality to Williams is more than convenience and schmoozing with taxpayers. It's genuine system reform. Automation has helped the Virginia DMV work toward its goal of faster, better customer service. For example, customers receive certificates of title for vehicles on the spot—there's no 30-day wait, no "you'll get it in the mail," Williams says. "You have to be responsive and creative to consistently meet the needs and exceed the expectations."

• New York: Department of Labor. "We had inadvertently created a system where it was impossible for someone to get what they wanted from us in an easy way," says deputy commissioner Jim Gutowski. "We just had to change the way we treated clients."

The labor department, which is in charge of services such as employment and job training for state residents, decided to become more user-friendly. "We found out quickly that the client doesn't care if you are a federal, local or state agency," Gutowski points out. "All they want is whatever service they need. They don't need to be bounced from agency to agency. So we said, why not try to bring all the labor-related services together in one place and do whatever we can to simplify the process."

The upshot: the Community Service Center concept, a sort of one-stop shop that provides a variety of services to clients. The four centers currently operating offer federal, state, local and volunteer services at one site. Two more centers are scheduled to open this year and another 13 in 1990.

To create the centers, the department asked employees to contribute ideas. In fact, Gutowski issued an internal request for proposals to come up with the best way to do it. A group of employees, not management, picked the top 15 proposals for funding. People were so enthusiastic that the first four centers came on-line within four months of proposal funding, Gutowski says.

Along the way both laws and atti-

IT'S NOT JUST THE STATES

State governments are not alone in their desire to make friends with taxpayers. Federal agencies and county governments have taken up the cause as well. The Internal Revenue Service, the federal agency people most love to hate, is trying to become your pal with a hand in your pocket as part of a total quality-improvement effort.

When Lawrence Gibbs took over as IRS commissioner in 1986, times were especially bad. Computer problems had left the agency with an unexpectedly high number of unprocessed accounts, refund delays and angry taxpayers. As Robert LeBaube, director of taxpayer services, told The Service Edge Newsletter, "Commissioner Gibbs saw we needed a better posture for dealing with taxpayers—our clients." The resulting quality-improvement efforts have gone unnoticed by many taxpayers so far, but the IRS expects that to change.

During the 1988 tax season, citizens calling the IRS for tax assistance got incorrect answers to one of every three questions they asked, according to a study by the General Accounting Office. (Other organizations put the error rate even higher.)

Through an agreement with the National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU), the IRS has now launched an agencywide training program focused on delivering quality service. During the 1989 tax filing season, all IRS telephone assistants—permanent or seasonal—will have completed five weeks of training about income tax law. According to LeBaube, "We're not making CPAs out of them by any means, but they should be able to answer common questions put forth by people who fill out their own returns. After all, it's those people who are our biggest clientele."

The IRS also has established over 500 quality teams. Here the impact has been tangible. One team determined that the relatively high number of errors, 3.2 percent, in deposits to the Federal Tax Deposit Project—the system whereby employers make payments to the IRS on behalf of their employees—could be reduced by making changes in the payment system. With those changes in place the error rate is now 0.2 percent.

At the other end of the spectrum, county governments are perhaps the most ardent advocates of customer-relations reform. Small, closely budgeted and extremely sensitive to their constituents—who are often neighbors as well as customers—county government officials have been exercising creativity and cleverness in the effort to improve their service. Here are some examples.

• Montgomery County, Maryland. Although County Executive Officer Sidney Kramer has an office in Rockville, chances are you won't find him in it. Kramer spends his time listening (and responding) to his customers—"the taxpayers and voters of Montgomery County." Kramer works for "community consensus," holding public forums to determine "what the citizens believe are the priorities" before meeting with his cabinet to allocate the county's $1 billion budget.

Kramer says that 30 years of experience in a "consumer-sensitive" business prompted him to bring that same focus to county government. "I believe that kind of commitment is contagious. I pass it on to my department officers and they pass it on to their departtudes had to be changed. "Some things we had been doing out of habit. And we had to change those habits. Some of the things we wanted to do were prohibited by law or regulation. We were determined to make this concept work and not compromise, so we had to get those changed."

To make the point that this change is for real, the Community Service Centers are on a three-month audit cycle. "In the past, if [agencies] were audited once every five years that was something. But the auditors go in quarterly now and look at everything, not just the books. They look at cleanliness, they look at meeting-room use by community groups, they look at computer usage and video usage and customer satisfaction data. Everyone knows how serious we are about making this work."

• Minnesota: Department of Administration. Administration, an agency with little public contact that supplies all staff support services for the other state agencies except budgeting and employee relations, may seem like a strange place for service-quality reform, but commissioner Sandra Hale would disagree. "We provide important services to every other agency in the state," she explains. "If we don't do our job well, those with public contact can't do theirs. And if we model good customer service, it helps them see that they can make the same changes."

"Back in 1983 when Sandy Hale took over, we weren't very well thought of," says deputy commissioner Jeffery Zlonis. "DOA didn't mean department of administration, it meant dead on arrival. An audit told us our customers saw us as a burden to bear instead of a help, which made sense. We weren't sure who we were, who our customers were or what our mission was. Were we regulators or staff support? Were we to help the other agencies or keep them in line?"

Part of the problem, Zlonis points out, is that the DOA is, in fact, both. On the one hand the agency supplies help and support, while on the other it carries out an oversight function required of it by the state legislature.

"A good example is in the information-management area," Zlonis says. "As a service group, we do centralized data processing and provide telecommunications—telephone service, data networks, etc.—for various agencies. On the control side, the legislature has given us responsibility over purments."

Does it work? Kramer cites an example. When a two-day storm devastated the county last June, employees of the Department of Transportation voluntarily worked around the clock to clear streets. And people noticed. "We received hundreds of letters and calls of commendation," Kramer says. As a number of journalists noted, Montgomery County's response went far beyond what citizens elsewhere in the country have come to expect from their government agencies.

• Hennepin County, Minnesota. From health care to welfare to juvenile justice, Hennepin County is working on improving customer service. Each department is clarifying its mission, who its stakeholders and customers are, and what those people experience as they go through the system. The process has brought changes in structure, training and automation to many county departments and agencies.

Welfare is a good example. Previously, the department was structured by the various programs it administered. Welfare clients were sent from program to program, filling out application and eligibility forms for each one. That changed with the introduction of a "consolidated application form." Combined with system automation, the new form allows welfare clients to "come in and deal with one worker, instead of going from one to another, which I think is a common problem in government," says Dave Waage, director of employee development and personal services in the county's personnel department.

In addition to assisting residents, part of the county's job is to enforce government regulations. If you're talking regulatory inspections, Waage says, the "clients" you're dealing with "are not people who necessarily want that service." With that distinction in mind, some county agencies are adding "education" to their "enforcement" charge.

For example, inspectors not only inspect restaurants and kitchens, they also try to familiarize business owners with public health considerations. "We're giving a preventative aspect to the visit," says Waage. "Instead of the big, bad government bureaucrat coming out there, inspecting their kitchen and finding something wrong, it is also a process for conducting some educational sessions for people in the community."

• Montgomery County, Ohio. Montgomery County's service excellence program is about to enter its fourth year. Launched in November 1986, it grew from then County Administrator Claude Malone's vision that county governments "exist only to provide service to people, whether it is enabling people to vote or picking up their garbage." Satisfied consumers, he contended, are the basis of any service business—county government included.

A survey by the county's human services department of some 1,400 "customers" identified two primary areas of dissatisfaction: "waiting time" and dealing with "faceless bureaucrats." Departmental service standards, designed to control those problems, mandate that clients be seen within 15 minutes of their scheduled appointment time and that employees personally—and personably—identify themselves in both face-to-face and phone interviews.—Ron Zemke and Kristin Anderson chasing of automated equipment; we review the bidding process, look at the contracts and so on. Then there is budgetary control—we review all requests for new equipment from all the agencies, and we set the priorities for those purchases. Also, the legislature vested [us with controlling] the development of a statewide information architecture—standards for how people keep their data, what kind of equipment they buy and so on."

While having such overarching control may seem like a manager's dream, in reality it was more of a nightmare, says Zlonis. "The person in the field didn't know who the client was. The legislature? The agency he was working with? Was he a helper? A cop? Was he an advocate for the agencies or an adversary? It was clear that providing good service and being the regulator all at once wasn't working. And it wasn't just in information services. The same was true in state-fleet operations and in our plant-management function."

Under Hale a lot of rethinking went on. As a result the agency was restructured, with its regulatory functions kept as separate as possible from its service functions. Information systems, for example, was broken into two units. The Intertechnology Group, which helps agencies with data processing, voice mail, electronic mail and so on, sells and maintains technological services for the other agencies. DOA's regulatory functions were assigned to a separate organization, the Information Policy Office. That group sets standards, reviews budgets and reports to the legislature.

So divided, says Zlonis, "We do a better job of both [support and control] than we did of either before."

The second change was to introduce marketplace dynamics. "Wherever possible we encouraged the agencies to consider us an option to the private sector and to expect us to be competitive," he says. For example, DOA had a 15-person typewriter-repair department, and agencies were required to use it. DOA found that its repair rates were not competitive, encouraged agencies to find lower-cost alternatives and eventually went out of the typewriter-repair business. At the same time, DOA's micrographics department is competitive with private-sector vendors and has become one of its "growth businesses."

A third innovation was to treat control functions in a situational fashion. "Traditionally our control function was reactive and procedural," says Zlonis. "Somebody loses a bunch of pencils, and the next day we write a rule that says every employee has to count their pencils. The next day we write a rule that says every employee has to count their pencils twice a day. Ridiculous!" Instead DOA came up with an incentives system. "An agency that was doing great at hiring compliance or overhead control or whatever earned the right to less oversight."

As a result of all this rethinking, DOA defined three specific functions:

- Control. The legislature had directed DOA to "do this" or "watch that." For example, it wanted to know if state cars were using gasohol whenever possible, whether purchasing was being done in a competitive way and whether fair-employment hiring parameters were being followed. In these areas, just as in information management, service and regulatory functions were clearly separated for every service being delivered.
- Public utility. Since the legislature had decreed that DOA would provide centralized computer-information services, testing guidelines, telecommunications services and so on to all state agencies, DOA complied. But under the new scheme, these services are run like public utilities, with rate boards and advisory help from the agencies DOA is chartered to serve.
- Alternative marketplace. DOA's final function was as a competitor to supply nonregulated goods and services to other agencies. Since state agencies do not, by law, have to buy their paper clips and pencils from DOA's central stores, that group must compete with private-sector suppliers. DOA's clients are still other agencies, but it could easily go out of a particular business if it can't compete with outside suppliers.

So what changed after all that thinking? Well, purchasing has become streamlined and more realistic, although it took a change in the law to do it. Where approval for $6,000 worth of printing once had to pass through six layers of management in three different buildings, the route has been simplified by changing authorization limits and levels. Where creating a new job in an agency and hiring someone to fill it was once a six-month to one-year proposition, the time required for the process has been cut by as much as 75 percent.

So it's all smiles and back pats now? No, not quite. At the end of the first year of this reorganization cycle, Hale held a recognition dinner for her agency. She was roundly chastised for doing so by a vocal legislator. "It's a problem for everyone in government who wants to recognize good work and achievement," she says. "Somehow people who work in the public sector are supposed to be motivated differently than are those in the private sector. They aren't supposed to need 'thank yous' and pats on the back."

Warning Flags

State officials across the country are enthusiastic about improving the image and substance of government service. And many are achieving results that demonstrate what can be accomplished when state employees are empowered to work on behalf of their customers.

Still, these folks have faced substantial barriers. They don't suggest that the road can be traveled without incident, but they do offer some insights into the art of changing a governmental body.

AS PER ORIGINAL

1. Support from the top. Cox says that without the governor and attorney general pushing for a change, little would have happened in New Jersey. "They went to hearings and persuaded legislators to let us work on the problem and not to pass laws that would dictate what we should do. They let us spend money on the problem while we fixed things in the DMV system. They have been patient, supportive and trusting," she says.

New York's Gutowski tells a similar story. "Sometimes we had to go to the legislature and ask for legal changes so we could allow [several different] things to be done by the same customer-service person. That took championing and trust."

2. Support from the middle. Williams' experience in Virginia leads him to conclude that you have to be as much a salesman as a good administrator to get middle managers on board. "Managers have deadlines and workloads and problems," he says. "It's hard for them to see value in, say, sending their people off for training. Their attitude is, 'Here we go again. Have to send my people off for another two days. That should back up the work.' Well, you have to prove to them that there is value in the sacrifice."

Although he agrees it's helpful to put customer-satisfaction accountability into the performance review system, Williams believes that managers in remote locations—like his local DMV offices—won't become service-oriented unless they are supported and encouraged in their efforts. "Someone from upper management has to go out and sell and coach and help make the idea of improving customer service real and doable," he says.

3. Staff for service. Several of the managers we spoke with felt that hiring the right people is a must if you're going to stress service and customer relations. In other words, you can't do it all with training. But trying to be choosy about who you hire can be a tough job in states such as California, where the legislature has decided the state should hire people no other employer will—essentially to function as the employer of last resort.

Williams agrees: "It takes special people to be in a position that has a regulatory component and yet be required to create good customer relations. We have to focus better on who we hire for these jobs."

4. Create training support. A good "infrastructure," as New Jersey's Cox called it, is critically important. Don't put front-line employees in untenable positions with clients or ask them to "make nice" without improving their skills and knowledge. If you don't give people the proper tools and support, your customer-service effort is doomed.

5. Work at it every day. Georgia's Weiskittel said it well: "You really have to believe in this and be enthusiastic about it. You have to focus on it with intensity or it is not going to be worth doing." T

Gentlemen:

For the twelve month period ending December 31, 1990, our Communications Center handled 55,531 calls for service, 48% percent of which were emergency in nature. In addition to the Sheriff's Department calls, we currently process and dispatch calls for fourteen (14) police agencies and two (2) fire departments.

According to involved parties, 9-1-1 Emergency Service will be on line for "Hot Testing" by mid May, 1991. The stated goal is to have the system tested and dispatchers trained in order to implement County wide service by July, 1991.

Our research, supported by data furnished by Greater Harris County 9-1-1 Emergency Network, reflects that calls for service will increase to 66,496, of which 78% percent will be emergency in nature. This added service will add Emergency Medical Services and eight (8) fire departments to our priority dispatch network for a total of twenty-six (26) agencies.

Communication Center staffing is currently based on the minimum number of personnel required to handle existing traffic. 9-1-1 responsibility is projected to require five (5) additional dispatcher positions. This additional staffing will require the addition of two (2) deputy supervisors in order to have a licensed police officer on duty in communication during all scheduled shifts.

In order to provide professional and efficient emergency service on the scale projected, as well as to assure officer safety while rendering these services for twenty-six (26) agencies, we request five (5) dispatch positions and two (2) deputy supervisor positions, effective June 1, 1991. Additional payroll related line items for the balance of the 1991 budget year are projected at $109,781.00.

Perry R. Hillegeist, Jr.

Gentlemen:

I will appear in Court on Monday, April 22, 1991, to request permission for the issuance of an RFP for the purchase of "Opening Day" book collections for our new branches.

These Requests For Proposals will be received by book wholesalers who are in the business of providing books to libraries. The books will be prepared for us, ready to be put on the shelf. The entire process is closely associated with the Dynix automation system that we purchased not long ago.

We are proposing minimum purchases for all 4 new branches (Missouri City, First Colony, Sugar Land and Simonton-Fulshear) in order to negotiate the best discount. These branches will of course open one-by-one and it will be several years before we build them all. We would like the successful bidder to be aware of the total scope of our buying, so that he can propose a good discount.

Overall we may buy a minimum of $665,000 worth of books for the branches in this way. Funds for these "opening day" collections were part of the bond funding for the branches.

Sincerely,

Roman S. Bohachevsky

Your request to establish Robert A. Amie as a Reserve Deputy in your office was originally approved through Personnel on November 14, 1990, although I find no record of this being approved by Commissioner's Court.

I've again reviewed the file to assure that no significant changes have occurred since the original OK from Personnel, and would have no problem with his work in your department as a Reserve Deputy.

We have received an opinion from our attorneys. This opinion states that the date of 14 May 1990 is the date, for appraisal reasons, that Missouri City took title.

Consequently, the Fort Bend Central Appraisal District intends to show the accounts, which have previously been split-out, as exempt for the 1991 appraisal roll.

TO: COMMISSIONERS COURT

FROM: DIANNE WILSON Dwilson

DATE: JANUARY 31,1991

RE: CREATE OFFICE OF ELECTION ADMINISTRATOR

I request that you consider the creation of the Office of Election Administrator to oversee the duties of all elections and voter registration.

In 1990 my office conducted nine elections and provided data to twenty-five other political subdivisions during their elections. Due to the number of elections, growth of Fort Bend County, and increase responsibilities in other areas of my office; I respectfully request that an election administrator department be created immediately.

The upcoming 1991 calendar of events requires prompt action on your part to allow the election administrator adequate time to prepare:

July - appoint election judges & polling places
August - Secretary Of State's Election School
Aug. - Nov.- Prepare for November 12 General Election & City of Houston
November - Send new voter registration certificates to all registered voters
December - Prepare for March Democratic & Republican Primary elections

Attached is pertinent information regarding the creation of this department. Estimated cost, not budgeted in 1991, is $5-15,000. This amount depends greatly on the salary you set for the election administrator.

Since I will no longer conduct contract elections for cities or political parties, it is imperative that the Commissioners Court create the Office of Election Administrator (Sec 31.031) and allow the County Election Commission (Sec. 31.032) adequate time to advertise, interview and hire a qualified person. I estimate the time frame to be 60 days from the date of the court's written order creating this position.

I await your decision.

SPACE REQUIREMENTS FOR ELECTION ADMINISTRATION

At this time the Election Division of the County Clerk's Office is located in three separate areas:

Voter Registration/Election office - County Clerk's Office
Election Central - William B. Travis Building, Room 609
Storage - William B. Travis Building, 4th floor
William B. Travis Building, 8th floor

There is sufficient space in Election Central to relocate the VR/Election office and still have room for election preparation and central count. This plan would necessitate moving all storage in the area to the 4th floor, requiring more space there.

The centralizing of all VR/Election activity to the Election Central area would be beneficial in coordinating staff activities during peak voter registration input and election preparation which overlap prior to each election.

An administrator's responsibility to hold all election requested by any entity in the county will demand a large secure area. Voted ballots must be held in a secure area for sixty day after an election. At this time there is no secure area large enough to hold the ballot boxes.

§ 31.001. Chief Election Officer

(a) The secretary of state is the chief election officer of the state.

The secretary may assign to the elections division staff any function relating to the administration of elections that is under his jurisdiction.

Notes of Decisions

In general 1
Jurisdiction 3
Presumptions 4
Secretary of state's authority 2

1. In general

Generally, duties required of voters at election are mandatory, while duties required of election officers over which voter has no control and no opportunity to see that duty is performed, are directory. Davis v. Walcott (Civ.App.1936) 96 S.W.2d 817.

Those charged with conducting elections should use every precaution possible to see that elections are conducted strictly in accordance with provisions of former Election Code, but after election had been held and it appeared that it had been fairly conducted and result correctly declared, and there were no charges of fraud, misconduct or illegality, entire election would not be set aside for irregularities unless statutes governing such matters stated that election must be vitiated. Wooley v. Sterrett (Civ. App.1965) 387 S.W.2d 734.

Generally, performance of duties placed upon election officials is directory unless made mandatory by statute, while those placed upon voters are mandatory. Fuentes v. Howard (Civ.App.1967) 423 S.W.2d 420, error dismissed; City of Roma v. Gonzalez (Civ.App.1965) 397 S.W.2d 943, ref. n.r.e.

Statutory or municipal charter provisions relating to steps to be taken prior to an election are directory where authority to hold election is otherwise conferred on those who are to order or conduct it. Holt v. Trantham (Civ.App.1978) 575 S.W.2d 83, ref. n.r.e.

2. Secretary of state's authority

Under the former Election Code, Texas Secretary of State had power to bar voting registrar from using questionnaire pertaining to residence of prospective voters, particularly where there was substantial evidence that questionnaire had been used as integral part of pattern of conduct which abridged voting rights or segment of citizenry. U.S. v. State of Tex. (D.C.1978) 445 F.Supp. 1245, affirmed 99 S.Ct. 1006, 439 U.S. 1105, 59 L.Ed.2d 66, rehearing denied 99 S.Ct. 1433, 440 U.S. 951, 59 L.Ed.2d 641.

V.A.T.S. Election Code, art. 1.03 (repealed; see, now, this subchapter), providing that Secretary of State should be chief election official of state and should have responsibility to obtain and maintain uniformity in application, operation and interpretation of election laws did not by implication gave Secretary commission to conduct or pay for party primaries, since effect would be to give him decision on whether state funds should be used for party primary elections and, if so, for what particular expenses and to what extent, and such would be unconstitutional delegation of legislative power in violation of Const. Art. 2, § 1. Bullock v. Calvert (Sup.1972) 480 S.W.2d 367.

While primary responsibility for designating place positions on ballot rests with respective state party executive committees, office of Secretary of State, by virtue of the former Election Code, was also involved in this process; should party executive committee failed to insure uniformity of place designation, Secretary of State, in capacity as chief election officer of state, would issue appropriate directive to accomplish this uniformity. Election Law Interpretation No. DAD-2 (1981).

It would be improper for Secretary of State's office to issue an opinion containing findings of fact which could directly affect civil litigation and/or criminal prosecution as this would constitute an unwarranted interference with prosecutorial discretion as well as with the fact-finding responsibilities of the courts. Election Law Opinion No. DAD-21 (1982).

Secretary of State could not approve or disapprove holding of a bond election beyond insuring that there had been compliance with all procedural requirements and conditions specified in the former Election Code. Election Law Opinion No. DAD-41 (1982).

3. Jurisdiction

In action to enjoin Texas voting registrar from refusing to register college dormitory residents to vote unless they established that they intended to remain in community after graduation, district court had pendent jurisdiction to decide controversy between registrar and State of Texas relating to whether Texas Secretary of State, pursuant to powers granted him by the former Election Code, had power to prohibit registrar from using questionnaire pertaining to residence. U.S. v. State of Tex. (D.C.1978) 445 F.Supp. 1245, affirmed 99 S.Ct. 1006, 439 U.S. 1105, 59 L.Ed.2d 66, rehearing denied 99 S.Ct. 1433, 440 U.S. 951, 59 L.Ed.2d 641.

4. Presumptions

In school tax election contest, in absence of issue regarding voters' qualifications, presumption is, unless contrary appears, that officials performed duty. Lewis v. Crump (Civ.App.1931) 34 S.W.2d 616.

§ 31.002. Official Forms

(a) The secretary of state shall prescribe the design and content, consistent with this code, of the forms necessary for the administration of this code.

(b) The secretary shall furnish samples of the forms to:

(1) the appropriate authorities who have administrative duties under this code; and

(2) other persons who request a form for duplication.

(c) The samples of forms shall be furnished without charge.

(d) An authority having administrative duties under this code shall use an official form in performing the administrative functions, except in an emergency in which an official form is unavailable. Other persons are not required to use an official form unless expressly required to do so by this code.

§ 31.003. Uniformity

The secretary of state shall obtain and maintain uniformity in the application, operation, and interpretation of this code and of the election laws outside this code. In performing this duty, the secretary shall prepare detailed and comprehensive written directives and instructions relating to and based on this code and the election laws outside this code. The secretary shall distribute these materials to the appropriate state and local authorities having duties in the administration of these laws.

Notes of Decisions

Approval of directives 1
Discrimination 2

1. Approval of directives
Attorney General could not approve as valid voting directives promulgated by the secretary of state pursuant to V.A.T.S. Election Code, art. 1.03 (repealed; see, now, this section), unless as a matter of law reasonable minds could not differ in the application of such a rule to the specific fact situation presented. Op.Atty.Gen.1968, No. M-284.

2. Discrimination
In light of V.A.T.S. Election Code, arts. 1.03 and 5.02 (repealed; see, now, this section), requiring Texas Secretary of State to obtain and maintain uniformity in application, operation and interpretation of election laws through issuance of directives to appropriate local officials, claim for relief against Texas Secretary of State and Attorney General was stated in suit by United States which alleged that Texas county assessor-collector applied discriminatory voter registration procedures and standards to students attending college in county, and State of Texas was properly joined as party defendant. U.S. v. State of Tex. (D.C.1976) 422 F.Supp. 917, cause dismissed 430 F.Supp. 920.

(a) The secretary of state may take appropriate action to protect the voting rights of the citizens of this state from abuse by the authorities administering the state's electoral processes.

(b) If the secretary determines that a person performing official functions in the administration of any part of the electoral processes is exercising the powers vested in that person in a manner that impedes the free exercise of a citizen's voting rights, the secretary may order the person to correct the offending conduct. If the person fails to comply, the secretary may seek enforcement of the order by a temporary restraining order or a writ of injunction or mandamus obtained through the attorney general.

Notes of Decisions

Construction and application 1
Noncompliance of officer with law 2

1. Construction and application

In light of V.A.T.S. Election Code, arts. 1.03 and 5.02 (repealed; see, now, this section) requiring Texas Secretary of State to obtain and maintain uniformity in application, operation and interpretation of election laws through issuance of directives to appropriate local officials, claim for relief against Texas Secretary of State and Attorney General was stated in suit by United States which alleged that Texas county assessor-collector applied discriminatory voter registration procedures and standards to students attending college in county, and State of Texas was properly joined as party defendant. U.S. v. State of Tex. (D.C.1976) 422 F.Supp. 917, cause dismissed 430 F.Supp. 920.

Under the former Election Code, Texas Secretary of State had power to bar voting registrar from using questionnaire pertaining to residence of prospective voters, particularly where there was substantial evidence that questionnaire had been used as integral part of pattern of conduct which abridged voting rights of segment of citizenry. U.S. v. State of Tex. (D.C.1978) 445 F.Supp. 1245, affirmed 99 S.Ct. 1006, 439 U.S. 1105, 59 L.Ed.2d 66, rehearing denied 99 S.Ct. 1433, 440 U.S. 951, 59 L.Ed.2d 641.

2. Noncompliance of officer with law

If the election has been fairly held, a voter cannot be disfranchised, by not having his vote counted, because of some informality in the preparation of the official ballot, or misconduct of the officers whose duty it is to furnish the voter with a legal official ballot. Kulp v. Railey (1906) 99 T. 310, 89 S.W. 958.

Whatever the law requires a voter to do himself, he must do as required in order to cast a valid ballot; but failure on the part of election officers to perform their duties prescribed by law, where such failure has not prevented fair election, will not deprive the elector of his voting privilege or of his right to exercise it. Bagley v. Holt (Civ. App.1968) 430 S.W.2d 817, ref. n.r.e.

Generally, performance of duties placed upon election officials is directory unless made mandatory by statute, while those placed upon voters are mandatory. Fuentes v. Howard (Civ.App.1967) 423 S.W.2d 420, error dismissed.

Statutory or municipal charter provisions relating to steps to be taken prior to an election are directory where authority to hold election is otherwise conferred on those who are to order or conduct it. Holt v. Trantham (Civ.App.1978) 575 S.W.2d 83, ref. n.r.e.

§ 31.044. Division of Certain Duties Between County Clerk and Administrator

(a) With respect to meetings of the commissioners court, including meetings at which the only business conducted pertains to elections, the county clerk shall perform his regularly prescribed duties in giving notice of and preparing the agenda for the meetings, attending the meetings and making a record of the proceedings, preparing and maintaining the minutes of the court, and filing and preserving copies of the court's orders, except as provided by Subsection (b). The county elections administrator shall cooperate with the county clerk in supplying information on election matters that are to be brought before the court and shall attend or be represented at the meetings of the court at which election matters are considered. The county clerk shall furnish the administrator with a copy of each order of the court that pertains to or affects an election, and the administrator shall maintain the copies on file.

(b) The administrator is responsible for providing the clerical assistance needed by the commissioners court in canvassing precinct election returns. The administrator shall maintain the official file of the court's tabulation of election results, and the county clerk need not maintain a file of copies of the tabulations.

(c) In an election on a measure in which the commissioners court is the final canvassing authority, if a statute requires the county clerk to record an order of the court in its minutes declaring whether the measure carried or failed, the county clerk shall perform that duty. A copy of the order shall also be filed in the office of the administrator. If a statute requires the county clerk to certify the result of the election to some other authority, the clerk shall perform that duty.

(d) If a statute provides for the ordering of an election on a measure by the commissioners court, the county judge, or another county authority on submission of a petition requesting the election, the administrator shall perform the duties that the statute places on the county clerk in connection with filing the petition, determining its validity, and any other matters preceding the ordering of the election.

(e) If a statute prescribing the procedure for creating a political subdivision provides for the ordering of an election by a county authority as a step in the creation process, the administrator shall perform the duties that the statute places on the county clerk in connection with matters preceding the entry of the order on whether the election will be ordered, including the filing of a petition for the creation, the holding of any hearing on the proposal, the filing of any report or other document that is a step in the procedure, and the taking of any appeal from the order on whether the election is to be ordered. If the holding of an election ordered by a county authority is not one of the steps in the creation process, the county clerk shall perform the duties placed on that officer in connection with the creation of a political subdivision.

(f) If a statute provides that the return of an election notice for an election ordered by a county authority is to be recorded in the minutes of the commissioners court, the return shall be filed in the office of the administrator.

(g) The county clerk is the proper officer to receive and post copies of proposed constitutional amendments under Article XVII, Section 1, of the Texas Constitution. However, the secretary of state shall also send a copy of each proposed amendment to the administrator for the administrator's information.

§ 31.045. Classification of Duties by Secretary of State

(a) The secretary of state shall adopt rules consistent with Sections 31.043 and 31.044 that classify the duties and functions placed on the county clerk by statutes outside this code according to whether they are to be performed by the county elections administrator or by the county clerk.

(b) If the administrator or county clerk of a county having the position of administrator is uncertain as to which person should perform a duty or function that the secretary has not classified, the person shall request the secretary to classify that duty or function, and the secretary shall comply with the request as soon as practicable.

(c) The secretary shall deliver a copy of each rule proposed under this section to the administrator and to the county clerk of each county having the position of administrator not later than the fifth day after the date notice of the proposal is published in the Texas Register and shall deliver a copy of each adopted rule to those persons not later than the fifth day after the date the certified copy of the rule is filed in the secretary's office. Failure to comply with this subsection does not affect the validity of a rule.

(d) On receiving notice of the creation of the position of administrator in a county, the secretary shall deliver to the county clerk a current set of the rules adopted under this section. On receiving notice of the initial appointment of the administrator, the secretary shall deliver a set of the rules to the administrator.

(e) The secretary may, on 30 days' notice, adopt a rule classifying a duty or function if the rule is needed in a shorter time than provided by the regular rulemaking process. The rule is considered an emergency rule for purposes of the Administrative Procedure and Texas Register Act (Article 6252-13a, Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes). The secretary is not required to give notice of the proposed rule under Subsection (c), but the secretary must give notice of the rule's adoption under that subsection.

If the statute under which the document is filed or submitted does not specify that the filing or submission is to be made with the administrator in a county having that position, the timeliness of the filing or submission is determined, as appropriate:

RE: Office of Elections Administrator

Realizing the question of creation of the Office of Elections Administrator is still in the air, I wish to present several recommendations for that office location if it is to be created, and even if the duties are transferred to the Tax A/C, the recommendations would suffice.

Attached are three plans with Plan A being the most cost effective, and Plan C being viable for a long period of time. Please consider each plan and I will be available for comments.

I again request the creation of the elections administrator to be effective July 1, 1991.

Thank you for your time and consideration of these plans.

TO: JUDGE ROY CORDES, JR. & MEMBERS OF COMMISSIONERS' COURT

FROM: GLORY HOPKINS, DISTRICT CLERK

RE: COMMISSIONERS' COURT AGENDA - APRIL 22, 1991

Setting a reasonable fee for the accounting and administrative expenses incurred in handling trust funds

DATE: APRIL 18, 1991

The Sellers Vs. Harris County case found that it is unconstitutional for a county to retain all of the interest accrued in a trust fund account held by the District Clerk.

However, Section 112.002 of the Local Government Code permits a County Auditor to require certain accounting procedures in regard to trust funds if the county population is over 190,000.

Section 117.005(a) states that the county may collect ... a fee in an amount set by the Commissioners' Court, but not to exceed $50.00. This fee is in addition to any fees the clerk collects as authorized by statute or court order.

The population of Fort Bend County is in excess of 190,000. Therefore, I am requesting that the following fees be established by this court:

$10.00 fee for up to $10,000.00,
$30.00 fee to $25,000.00, and
$50.00 fee above $25,000.00.

I have discussed this with Robert Grayless and he is in agreement.

ARTICLE XVI
SECTION "3" COMPLIANCE IN THE PROVISION OF TRAINING
EMPLOYMENT AND BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

(a) The work to be performed under this contract is on a project assisted under a program providing direct Federal financial assistance from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and is subject to the requirements of Section 3 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, 12 U.S.C. 1701u. Section 3 requires that to the greatest extent feasible opportunities for training and employment be given lower income residents of the project area and contracts for work in connection with the project be awarded to business concerns which are located in, or owned in substantial part by persons residing in the area of the project.

(b) The parties to this contract will comply with the provisions of said Section 3 and the regulations issued pursuant thereto by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development set forth in 24 C.F.R. 235, and all applicable rules and orders of the Department issued thereunder prior to the execution of this contract. Part 135. The contractor will not subcontract with any subcontractor where it has been found in violation of regulations under 24 C.F.R. Part 135 and will not let any subcontract unless the subcontractor has first provided it with a preliminary statement of ability to comply with the requirements of these regulations.

(e) Compliance with the provisions of Section 3, the regulations set forth in 24 C.F.R. Part 135, and all applicable rules and orders of the Department issued hereunder prior to the execution of the contract, shall be a condition of the federal financial assistance provided to the project, binding upon the applicant or recipient for such assistance, its successors and assigns. Failure to fulfill these requirements shall subject the applicant or recipient, its contractors and subcontractors, its successors and assigns to those sanctions specified by the grant or loan agreement or contract through which federal assistance is provided, and to such sanctions as are specified by 24 C.F.R. Part 135.

ARTICLE XVII
SECTION 503 HANDICAPPED (IF $2,500 OR OVER) AFFIRMATIVE ACTION FOR HANDICAPPED WORKERS

(f) ENGINEER will include the provisions of this clause in every subcontract or purchase order of $2,500 or more unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary issued pursuant to Section 503 of the Act, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the Director of the Office of Federal

March 11, 1991

Small Construction Company
P. O. Box 301
Pasadena, TX 77501

Dear Angie:

This is in response to your letter dated March 7, 1991 regarding Purchase Order #0295-13769, Mustang Civic Center, Fresno, Texas.

Your letter indicated a balance due of $9,137.84 which consists of $9,002.80 - balance due and $135.04 - late charges. However, I explained to you, prior to our final payment of $19,285.00 on February 18, 1991, why the payment amount would be less than the amount billed. The original bid amount was $66,148.00. Without Commissioners' Court approval, we are authorized to pay only the bid amount.

On February 11, 1991, Commissioners' Court exercised its authority by authorizing an additional amount of $16,537.00. The additional amount represents 25% over the original bid price. The 25% limit over the price is mandated by the State of Texas in the Local Government Code.

Angie, I hope you understand why we paid the bid price ($66,148.00) plus the 25% over the bid price ($16,537.00) resulting in a payment to Small Construction Company of $82,685.00.

I regret that my reply could not be more favorable; however, we must follow the mandates of the Local Government Code.

Respectfully yours,

Isaiah W. Watkins, Jr.
Administrative Superintendent
